Voters to face cumbersome ballot

By JIM CARAVALLAH
Roman Staff Writer

Romulus voters will be faced with a cumbersome ballot in the Aug. 7 city primary election for selection of 14 council candidates for the Nov. 6 general election.

Likewise, the voters will be faced with a number of city charter amendments designed to clarify the charter and bring it more in line with state laws.

Voters will select 14 of 28 citizens seeking election to the city council. Included in the list of 28 are the seven incumbent councilmen, President Jimmie C. Raspberry and councilmen Edmund W. Bizek, Fred Junior Block, Brooker R. Edwards, William M. Oakley, Ellis T. Pennington and James C. Stewart.

THE LIST also is divided into several slates, including one of three incumbents — Raspberry, Edwards and Pennington. Two other incumbents, Block and Oakley, are included on the "IQ Slate" with three newcomers.

Also on the IQ State (Citizens for Integrity and Quality in Romulus Government) are Perry C. Gray, Donald J. Treder and Gilbert E. White.

Roman Special Election Coverage

The remaining incumbents, Bizek and Stewart, are running as independent candidates.

THE LIST of selections also is divided into another slate — that of Terry L. Troutt, candidate for mayor in the Nov. 6 general election.

Although Troutt will not have to face a primary vote, his five council candidates, Richard E. Butz, Lng Coleman, Joan A. Lee, Robert H. Martin and Jack H. Trumble, will be running on the primary ticket.

The charter amendments to be included on the ballot will clarify the terms in office of the councilmen, clarify the line of succession in the event the mayor cannot serve out his full term, clarify the council's power to establish administrative departments and change the requirements for filing for office.

THE AMENDMENTS change the council term from seven two-year terms served concurrently to three four-year terms and four four-year terms served on a staggered basis.

The change will allow the voters to select four councilmen for four year terms in one election year, and select the remaining three councilmen for four year terms, two years later.

A second charter change gives the council the power to appoint a mayor in the event the elected mayor is incapable of serving his term in office and the mayor pro-tem, (council president) is unwilling to serve the unexpired term.

The third change will give the council more definite powers in establishing administrative departments in the government.

ANOTHER CHANGE will reduce the required number of signatures for filing nominating petitions to at least 50 and not more than 100 valid signatures.

The present charter calls for at least 100 and not more than 200 signatures on the nominating petitions.

Changes in the procedure in spending city funds also will be requested in a charter amendment. The proposed change will make the checks and balances between the city administration and the council more stringent.

Voters will not have to choose administrative candidates on the Aug. 7 primary election ballot because only two candidates filed for each administrative spot — mayor, clerk and treasurer.

THE THREE incumbents, Mayor Hyle Carmichael, Clerk Leonard Folmar and Treasurer, Albert Glinski, filed as a slate. While challengers Terry L. Troutt, mayoral candidate, Gary Bingamen, clerk candidate and John B. Lewkowicz, treasurer candidate, are running as a team.

Their names will appear on the Nov. 6 general election ballot.

Troutt team says planning needed in city

All the members of the Troutt team ticket, five council candidates running on a slate with Terry L. Troutt, candidate for mayor, said Romulus has a problem of communication between the council and administration and that the city needs sounder planning for development toward its future.

The five were each questioned on the two issues by The Romulus Roman in a

Incumbents to slate together

Two of three incumbent council candidates running as part of a slate believe that the administration is at fault for creating a communication gap in the Romulus City government.

Brooker R. Edwards and Ellis T. Pennington, blame the administration for causing a communication problem, while their running mate, Council President Jimmie C. Raspberry, believes he can work with an administration for the improvement of Romulus.

Edwards, 47, said: "I would work with the administration 100 percent to correct the communication problem there seems to be, but the administration wants to work for big business in Romulus and not the little man, as I'd like to. We don't see eye-to-eye on how to best help the citizens of the community."

EDWARDS, resident of the community for the past 21 years, said Romulus is in need of sounder planning, possibly the type provided by a full time planning consultant, but that the city administration has refused to hire a full time planner.

"The council agreed to hire a planner at $17,000 per year," Edwards said. "But the administration said it wouldn't pay any more than it pays its present department heads - about $13,500 per year."

"You can't get anyone with expertise in the field for that kind of money."

"I'm afraid development and business stop for lack of a planner."

PENNINGTON, 45, a 23-year resident of the community, said: there is a need for a full-time planner, but the limitation on salary will hurt the city.

Raspberry, 52, has spent 30 years in Romulus. He said: "I can work with any man. There is a city communication problem today because the council isn't apprised of the situations in Romulus."

"I think we can improve the communication problem by getting more people involved in the government, forcing all public officials to stay concerned and open to discussion."

Raspberry said he has promoted sounder planning in community development for the past three years.

"During that time, the council appropriated $20,000 each year for a planner."

recent survey.

Richard E. Butz, 47, is a newcomer to Romulus politics running with Troutt.

HE SEES a problem in communication, and said: "If we get the Troutt ticket elected, we'd solve the problem, because we are all dedicated to the same goals, and will work together for the same purposes."

A resident of Romulus for seven years, Butz said the city needs sounder planning in development.

"If the Troutt team were elected, we'd work as a council and mayor to develop that sounder planning," he said. "Right now, a great many areas of development need clarification, and the need for clarification breeds delays, which discourage developers from coming to our community."

Lng Coleman, 32, agreed with Butz on the communication problem, and on its solution.

"One of the reasons I got involved is because the problem discouraged a contractor from coming to the city," Coleman said. "Hopefully, the Troutt team will be swept into office, and we'll work as a group for improving the community."

"WE WILL vote as individuals, but will have the same broad goals, which solve many of the communication problems."

Coleman, a resident of the community for the past 12 years, said sounder planning and community development will come with unified body "doing all they can together to get developers into town."

Joan A. Lee, 29, said: "There should be regular meetings between the mayor and the council to discuss problems."

Hospital to change policy for payment

Wayne County General Hospital recently switched to a new "pay as you go" basic for patient care.

In the past, hospital authorities were lax in collecting fees for patient care from health insurance companies, because the county subsidized health care costs in a majority of instances said Wayne County Commissioner Tom Taylor (D-20th District).

The laxity cost the county almost $12 million yearly in

DON'T BE LEFT OUT OF CITY HALL — Weeks of primary campaigning will come to a head Tuesday when Romulus citizens must narrow down a field of 29 council candidates to 14 for the November run-off. In the meantime, the above

15 council candidates run as independents

Fifteen independent Romulus council candidates, including two incumbents, discussed council administration and community planning during recent interviews with the Romulus Roman.

Incumbent Edmund W.

Bizek, 32, said he sees a problem of communication, between the mayor and council but says he will work to improve it.

The 25-year Romulus resident said planning, particularly a full-time planner, is a basic need for the community's development.

Another incumbent, James C. Stewart, 47, said the city must hire a full-time planner to promote orderly development.

"We have to plan for the future, but when the council offers $17,000 for a planner, we're told the administration will only pay $13,500 — not enough for a good planner," said the 18-year Romulus resident said.

Barry T. Baumann, a 22-year-old newcomer to politics who has spent his entire life in Romulus said: "Communication will be solved if I'm elected because I'm not out for myself, and don't owe any allegiances to a slate."

Baumann said he would advocate a new master plan, which is followed strictly, to improve Romulus' development.

"We need a new plan to chart our growth, and need an industrial coordinator to promote it," he said.

Gervazio Canejo, 43, said: "I will work with anyone who is elected to promote a better Romulus."

He said community groups can go a long way toward promoting and planning the community's growth.

"I joined the Chamber of Commerce to promote Romulus," said the 21-year resident. "I believe other people should get involved."

Charles J. Dick, Jr., 37, said: "The communications will be improved if the voters elect people who want to represent them, and are not concerned with their image."

The 32-year resident of the community said: "Romulus needs a planning department a full-time planner to improve growth and an industrial coordinator to sell the community."

Davis B. Draper, 62, a 35-year resident, said: "The council has to learn its place in government before the communication problem is solved. The council is not the administration in government."

Draper said the community needs a new master plan and more professionals, including a lawyer to chart the city's growth.

"We must set the pattern today for our future, and can only do that with professional help," he said.

John Gilligan, 44, said "There is a need for better planning, more recreational areas, more taxes from the airports and more stringent controls on developers in Romulus' growth."

Thomas J. Gondek, 27, said: "If elected, I'd attend special sessions, in an effort to iron out the problems of communication before council meetings."

Township to sue for day-in-court

By HENRY CANTIN

Huron Township may file suit in Wayne County Circuit Court against the Michigan State Commission in the township's protest of the state tax equalization factor.

Supervisor George W. Moore said that Huron Township Attorney Richard James has been instructed to prepare court action in the township's appeal for a hearing on the township's grievances regarding the tax equalization factor.

The suit is expected to be formally filed with the court in about two weeks Moore said.

Previous applications to the tax commission to grant a hearing on the township's protest of the state tax equalization factor has met with failure, Moore said.

A similar request to Gov. William G. Milliken early last month has not brought any response as yet.

The supervisor also dispatched letters to more than 130 state representatives demanding a Michigan House of Representatives hearing on the township's tax protest.

The supervisor said last year and again this year appeals for hearings before the tax commission were denied.

The annual state assessment valuation (SAV) factor set by the tax commission is used to compute property taxes in the township.

"We object to the SAV factor set by the commission," Moore said. "Since 1964 there has been an increase in the township's state equalization property valuation of 11 per cent every year except this year which is not entirely justified."

The SAV factor which is used to bring property valuation assessments up to meet state criteria and tax assessing procedures is now set at 2.30 per cent in contrast to 2.09 per cent last year, Moore said.

BLOCK, 48, a resident of the community all his life, said: "Members of the council have to forget they are politicians and remember they're city fathers before we improve the communications in city hall."

"We should be able to sit down and discuss problems."

Block said the city could go a long way toward planning growth in Romulus by turning a more inviting side to prospective developers.

"We turn too many developers off before they get here," Block said. "development will come to Romulus if you improve your relationship with developers."

WILLIAM M. OAKLEY, 42, a life-long resident of Romulus, said the efforts of the five member slate to unseat present incumbents could go a long way toward solving the communication problem.

"Romulus should hire itself a hot-shot salesman—an economic coordinator—to promote the city to outside interests," Oakley said. "That will go a long way toward improving this community's planning."

Gray, 40, a Romulus resident for 15 years, believes many members of the council are responsible for the communication problem in government.

"A councilman should show concern for a majority of the city, not himself," Gray said.

Gray said Romulus should have a skilled technician who can look into Romulus' future.

"I'd favor a full-time planner because he would be able to look ahead for the community and chart the community growth," he said.

TREDER, 38, a life-long resident of the community, said his knowledge as a construction engineer will go toward solving the communication problem.

"I have knowledge which is useful to the administration," he explained, "and would offer it as a solution for a better city."

"I also think the city should push for a full-time planner—for more expertise in government—in an effort to guide the city's rising growth."

"The planner will be available to guide prospective developers to those areas which best serve the community at large."

WHITE, 38, said putting people "interested in the community into office" will solve many of the communication problems.

A resident for 32 years, he said the community should hire an industrial coordinator, a full time engineer and a full time lawyer to guide the community's growth.

"We need knowledgeable people in city hall," he said. Then the council and the city's boards can make decisions based on the perspective of competent people."

PCHA stalls abortion policy action

By JIM CARAVALLAH
Roman Staff Writer

The People's Community Hospital Authority (PCHA) last night failed to set up a definite abortion policy for its four facilities including Annapolis Hospital in Wayne. Abortions are not being performed at the hospitals. The PCHA Board of Directors delayed discussion on abortion after only four of the 30 board members present at the meeting were able to talk about the issue. The board may decide to call a special meeting to set up an abortion policy.

What little discussion came on the item was generally against allowing abortions in the hospitals.

BOARD MEMBER

Clarence R. Constan of Dearborn Heights characterized the feeling of those who spoke when he said: "I don't believe the hospitals in the authority should become abortion clinics."

"This issue carries moral overtones which cannot be discussed hastily."

The motion to delay abortion policy discussion passed with only a few dissenting votes — those of the only two women board members, Patricia Cullen of Van Buren Township and Karen Mazo of Woodhaven.

Board chairman Donald J. Pizzimenti also expressed disappointment with the delay action.

"I'M SORRY to see this motion," he said. "It quashed all discussion on the issue, and I believe one of the chief concerns of the board should be to reach some policy on early termination of pregnancy."

"I'm wondering what will happen to the authority if someone comes to the hospital, as a public institution, with a physician willing to perform abortions, and is not able to use the facilities."

"It may not cause any problems," he added. "But then, it is a hazy issue for the authority, and something which needs direction to avoid any problems for the authority."

The medical advisory committee that asked PCHA for a definite policy, suggested patting abortions under the guidance and control of each hospital's department of obstetrics and gynecology.

Only physicians with "major privileges" in obstetrics and gynecology would be allowed to perform abortions and would allow each department of obstetrics and gynecology to recommend rules governing places and times for abortions in each hospital, the committee suggested.

"IN A POLL of doctors throughout the authority," Dr. Wicht said, "more than 90 per cent of the physicians on staff desire some sort of definitive policy, while fewer than 50 per cent expressed willingness have abortions performed in the authority's hospitals."

"On the question of abortions, the entire process is elective, both for the doctors who may be asked to perform abortions and for the women who are to undergo abortions."

"Neither doctors nor women would be forced to undergo abortions against their will."

MYSTERY OF THE FALLEN TREE — Mrs. Angeline Hicks of Romulus recently was cleaning an upstairs bedroom of her home at 36850 Herman when "suddenly there was light." And as she glanced at the window she saw her 70-foot front-yard oak tree falling.

John M. Kruszko, 23, a life-long resident, said: "The city needs 'more stringent zoning laws to promote better planning."

"Laws are set up to protect the city," he said, "and I think they should be tough enough to do their job."

Frank R. Kudla, Jr., 35, a life-long resident, said: "I will go between the council and administration in an effort to solve the communication problem."

Kudla also believes the community needs sounder planning.

Beverly McAnally, 46, said: "We need to re-examine what we want to be as a city, and then to proceed in that vein. We need new thinking — do we want to be a place for people to live or have a glorified tax base, where people can't live?"

Michael C. Melenda, 53, said: "The airport has ruined a lot of what is good for Romulus."

Thomas B. Morris, 28, a life-long resident, said, "The city's overall planning is good, but it isn't carried as extensively as it can be. 'Our growth problems aren't unique, because no one's growing these days. It's a fact of life."

Robert D. Plank, a 41-year-old 30-year resident said: "Government is a give and take proposition. If elected, I'd discuss issues, not personalities, to solve communication problems."

The candidate believes the city needs an industrial coordinator and a full-time engineering department to solve growth problems.

"I fought for the coordinator, when the position was eliminated, but if given the chance on the council, I will try to see it reinstated," he said.

Dolores E. Ristow, 37, a 17-year resident, said: "I hope to preclude the communication problem by playing on civic pride."

She said the city needs foresight in planning.

John R. Ryznar, 45, a life-long resident, said: "The city needs sounder planning, particularly in offering services, to improve its development."

hospital, operating out of offices on the Wayne County General Hospital grounds in an effort to keep the commissioners informed of the hospital's status.

During the past 10 months, the hospital has added more than 100 new employees including 62 registered nurses, 43 new clerks, 10 medical technicians, five licensed practical nurses, one medical attendant, one lab technician and one social worker to correct some manpower deficiencies.

COST of the more than 100 new positions comes to $1.5 million in new construction to correct structural inadequacies cited by the JCAH.

Included in the construction costs is $10 million for the new long term care facility and $5 million for such improvements as a new obstetrics-new born infant care unit, new out-patient clinic facility, plans for a new psychiatric building and new air conditioning for the acute hospital.

Another $4 million in maintenance costs will be saved annually in the psychiatric care division through a reevaluation of present psychiatric care facilities and an upgrading structures in the division.

The county's psychiatric hospital, a separate facility, is operating under a six-month provisional license and is in danger of losing its permanent authorization.

The commissioners said negotiations are underway with the legislature to secure a $39 million loan from the state to build a new psychiatric building and a new jail.

The accrediting group consists of representatives of the American Hospital Association, the American Medical Association, the American College of Surgeons and the American College of Physicians.

Candidate meet set

The Political Action Committee of the American Progressive Association of Romulus has scheduled public meetings with all candidates in the upcoming Aug. 7 primary election.

The meetings, scheduled this week, will allow the political action committee to make recommendations to the citizens of Romulus on the candidates who will best serve the city's needs.

The APA, a nonpartisan association in Romulus for more than 20 years, is dedicated to informing the citizens of the community of the issues and the candidates in politics.

Mayor Hyle J. Carmichael, and the members of the "IQ Slate" (Citizens for Integrity and Quality in Romulus Government) met with the committee Sunday.

Independent council candidates have been invited to a meeting scheduled for Friday. Members of the Trout Team Ticket will meet with the committee Sunday.

All area residents are invited to attend the meetings, slated for the APA Community Center on Beverly Road by the Beverly Elementary School.

For future development

Troutt team says planning needed

"I don't see why the council and administration can't sit down and find our common goals to improve communications."

MRS. LEE, who has been in the community three and a half years, said communication should go farther than between just the branches of government.

"There's a problem between the government and the people," she said. "I'd like to see citizen groups getting out into the community, as liaisons to the community from the government, to spot the problems before they become drastic situations."

She said there is a need for better planning, adding: "We need a city master plan and need to hire a full time planner to guide our city toward development."

"In addition, we need citizen input to develop an idea of where the citizens want the city to go in the future."

"WE ALSO need an industrial coordinator to sell the community to outside interests."

Robert H. Martin, 44, said the communication problem could be solved by holding more regular meetings between the council and mayor.

"The council should have pre-meeting conferences with the mayor to discuss and coordinate plans with the administration," he said.

"There's no reason why items should be fought out in public the way it's being done now."

Martin said hiring a city planner and industrial coordinator would improve the city's growth the development.

"WE NEED to hire full-time individuals to coordinate and develop our community," he said. "For too long, the city has grown too little, and that's why I ran."

Martin is a nine-year resident of the city.

Jack H. Trumble, 39, an eight year resident of the community, said communication problems will be solved in the Trout team were elected to office.

Trumble said the planning need for the community could be resolved by hiring a full time planner at a good wage.

"I'd like to hire a man on an incentive basis — pay him $15,000, and pay him another $10,000 bonus if he brings substantial growth to the community," he added.

The city also needs a master plan."

Tourism down in state

Gasoline shortage fear blamed

An unfounded fear of not being able to buy gasoline is cited as the major reason for at least a 10 per cent drop in tourism so far this summer in many northern Michigan

Vacation for deaf planned

A camp for the deaf and hard of hearing is to be held at Grass Lake, Michigan near Jackson on Aug. 5 to 12. The camp is for persons of all ages, however, children under nine years of age must be accompanied by an adult.

Campers may attend for the full week or for any part of the week. Many activities will be provided, including recreation, handcraft and a banquet.

resort areas, according to Automobile Club of Michigan. "This decline is even more alarming when it is considered that for the past five years tourism has been growing at a 10 to 15 per cent rate annually," said Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

"A tourism drop in northern Michigan apparently has resulted in many motorists traveling near home to conserve fuel," he said. "This factor has boosted southern Michigan tourism somewhat, but not enough to offset a general decline across the state."

"CANCELING travel plans to northern resort areas is unfortunate since the biggest problem area for obtaining gas is south of a line from Bay City to Ludington."

Two-thirds of the northern Lower Peninsula stations are operating normally and 80 per cent of the Upper Peninsula stations are open the same as before the shortage developed. Three of four stations limiting operations to conserve fuel are located in southern Lower Michigan.

"Despite the availability of gas, a number of northern motel, campground and tourist attraction managers are reporting business drops ranging from 10 to 35 per cent," Ratke said.

An Auto Club travel counter survey shows that many motorists are hesitant to drive to resort areas because they fear running out of gas. One-third of the persons requesting travel information from Auto Club have asked about availability of gasoline for their trip.

AN AUTO CLUB survey of tourism operations indicates substantial drops across portions of Michigan as compared with last year:

— Nearly half the state park campgrounds have an average five per cent decrease in attendance.

— Early summer requests for maps and routings at 57 Auto Club offices across the state are down five per cent.

Romulus teacher to lecture on advantage of meditation

A former Romulus High School teacher is holding a free lecture on transcendental meditation at 7 p.m. tonight. Patricia Kanclerz recently returned from five months of study with the Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, founder of the meditation technique.

She studied in LaAnitilla, Spain, and has returned to work for the International Meditation Society with three other full-time teachers.

PRIOR TO HER studies in Spain, Ms. Kanclerz attended the University of Michigan where she received a masters degree in English. She taught at Romulus High School for two years.

Now, she teaches the meditation technique monthly in Romulus and in other area communities.

The technique is very easy and natural, Ms. Kanclerz said.

"Practiced twice daily for 15 to 20 minutes, transcendental meditation will dissolve deep stress and give the meditator more energy," Ms. Kanclerz said.

MS. KANCLERZ ALSO claims the meditation technique can eliminate illnesses caused by nervous stress.

An introductory lecture in meditation techniques will be offered at the Romulus Public Library at 7 p.m. tonight.

The free lecture is open to the public. For further information, call the International Meditation Society's area headquarters, 834-1010.

Former area school official gets notice of retirement

William E. Jakad, 55, a former assistant superintendent of Romulus Community Schools (1964-1972) who has been on a 12-month health leave was notified by the Michigan Public School Retirement Board that he has been officially placed on the retirement list.

Jakad, father of two children, was a professor of education at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant, prior to assuming his varied duties with the Romulus Community School District in 1964.

He is a former resident of Plymouth, Mich., and now resides at Fort Pierce, Fla.

The Romulus Board of Education in March, 1972 approved a 12-month leave for Jakad.

His duties with the school district during his eight-year assistant superintendency included professional personnel, special service department, child accounting, contract negotiation and public relations in addition to assuming the superintendent's post during his absence.

Jakad has been succeeded by James M. Garfield.

Law to protect area consumers

Area residents may not have to continue payment for a new refrigerator that doesn't refrigerate properly or a shoddy home improvement job, if their installment payment contract has been sold to a bank or finance company.

With the abolition of an old Michigan law known as the Holder-in-Due-Course Doctrine, consumers may have the right to withhold payment if their merchandise is not delivered or arrives damaged or defective. The law also applies to home improvement contracts.

Before the law was changed at the beginning of this year, banks and finance companies had the right to demand payment on contracts they had purchased even if the consumer had a valid complaint against the original seller.

Now banks and finance companies can be held legally responsible in court for all promises made by the original seller.

The Michigan Consumers Council has published a bulletin explaining this change in the law entitled "You Can Stand Up to Unfair Businesses." The bulletin also explains the Home Solicitation Sales Law, commonly known as the "three-day cooling off law," which allows consumers to cancel contracts signed in their homes within three business days.

To obtain a free copy of the bulletin, send a stamped, self-addressed four inch by nine inch and one half inch envelope to the Michigan Consumers Council, 525 Hollister Building, Lansing, 48933.

Must retain faith

Our MIA's remain missing in action

Today's edition concludes the special series on life in a North Vietnamese prisoner of war camp—and the safe return of POW Lt. Col. Donald E. Odell.

The response to Col. Odell's six-part story has been heartening. The heartening news comes by learning that the vast majority of our citizens share the colonel's love for America and freedom.

Col. Odell's story is a vivid account of man's determination to survive, yet retain a sense of love for his country - even when he learns that back home Americans are parading with the banners of the Viet Cong.

The POW's are home. Col. Odell is home - yet U.S. authorities are gearing up for what may prove to be the toughest task of all...accounting for the men still missing in action in Southeast Asia.

Three families in Western Wayne County are also waiting. They wait for news on the whereabouts of their MIA loved ones.

We must not forget MIA's Sgt. Gary LaBohn and Sgt. Refugio Teran, both of Westland - for if we do, then we lose grasp of the true meaning of faith in God.

At the State Department, the officer in charge of POW-MIA (prisoner of war-missing in action) affairs, Frank Sieverts, says: "We're not ready to relax yet. We are continuing with the very serious work of searching for information about the missing-in-action."

Sieverts emphasizes that the search is going to be a grim, heart-breaking job. Of some 1,900 missing in action in Southeast Asia, only 588 have been accounted for so far, leaving more than 1,300 whose fate is unknown.

In Laos, for example, only nine Americans have turned up out of a total of more than 300.

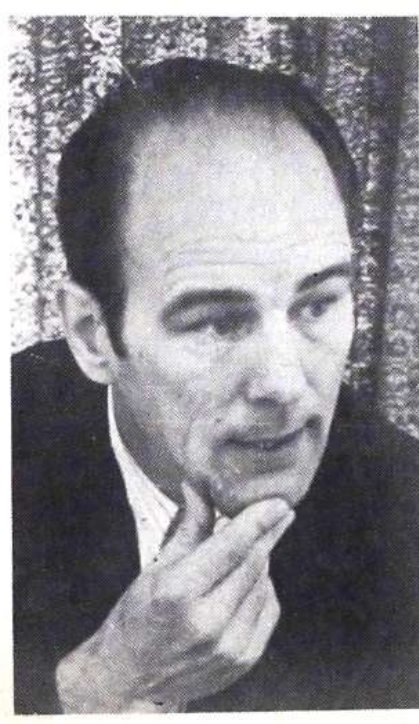

"We intend to be as thorough and as quick as possible," says Sieverts. "No one wants to prolong the uncertainty."

Sieverts makes it clear that the State Department and U.S. military officials won't let up until they have exhausted all effort to account for the MIAs.

If POW Col. Odell could keep the faith... we must now work for news on the whereabouts of 1,300 MIA's - it's called faith.

"...I would like to stay in my community and repay, by whatever means, the indebtedness I owe to those who did not forget us and supported our cause."

A returned POW's personal reflections

Col. Odell concludes his story-part 6

Copyright 1973 by The Macomb Daily

Back home now, walking familiar streets again as a free man, I look back on those 5½ years as a prisoner of war in North Vietnam and I do not consider them totally lost.

If this seems strange, let me hasten to add I would not want to repeat the experience... but neither do I consider the 2,007 days spent as a prisoner of the North Vietnamese as mere pages on a calendar.

I learned, during this period, more about myself and my fellow man than it is the privilege of many individuals to learn in a lifetime of living.

I learned to be more tolerant of other people's behavior, their idiosyncracies and their faults. I have become more respectful of their opinions, their hopes and their aspirations and their motivations.

The reason I have changed in this respect is because I was subjected for long periods of time to close confinement with one or two other individuals. Each of us came from different backgrounds and environments. We were pretty set in our ways about many things but, in order to survive the ordeal we all underwent at various times and in varying degrees, each of us had to give a little and channel whatever strength we possessed physically and mentally into one direction for the common good. As we learned early, we needed each other for survival.

Self-dignity

In the face of constant efforts to divide us, to isolate us and to degrade us by unspeakable treatment, it was important for self dignity that we retain what meager threads of humanity existed for us. We found it amongst one another by the simple process of listening, patience, showing understanding when someone felt he had betrayed himself, us or his country.

In other words, we may have reached the ultimate understanding of one another as human beings under the most animal-like existence.

While I feel I have a better insight into myself (there was much time during those 5½ years for self introspection) and my fellow man, I reserve the right not to change my beliefs and feeling toward those who evidence attitudes detrimental to our country and our society.

While I realize that one of our most precious traditions is that of free speech, I do not feel it should be distorted to the point where some individuals felt it was their right to desecrate our flag, flaunt law and order and otherwise comport themselves in what I feel to be an un-American manner.

Discouragement

For instance, a great source of discouragement and frustration to us as prisoners of war was the actions of the anti-war extremists (the so-called professional protestors), who visited North Vietnam during our imprisonment.

We were shown newsreels and given articles about the mass anti-war demonstrations. Much of this brought us to near tears when we saw and heard what was going on back home while we were trying to maintain the ideals of our country and the commitments it had made to other nations in respect to the Communist threat.

I felt, as did many other POWs, that the North Vietnamese relied heavily on these demonstrations and anti-American articles and speeches as encouragement to continue the war... that the demonstrations would gain momentum and force the administration into a decision which would be detrimental to the ideals in which we believed and were trying to uphold.

On several occasions, our interrogators told us:

"Time is on our side, eventually we will win... your country is being divided from within and the dissidents are growing in numbers."

Internal decay

We were told, as we sat alone in those interrogation rooms, that America, like the ancient societies of Rome and Greece, would explode from within and collapse and our country, as we had known it, would no longer exist.

Probably the worst non-physical blow, however, was to be told by our captors that some of the anti-war activists were their "friends" and sympathetic to their cause and, if directed, these "friends" could be persuaded to bring harm to our families back in the United States.

We did not really believe this, of course, but the seed had been planted and it did disconcert us. To my knowledge, outside of a few abusive phone calls, no threats were made.

I classify the activists into two groups; one whose followers I considered to be un-American in their disrespect for flag, country and law and order... the other, those who felt we ought to go in with the idea of winning and enough force to win and not draw out the conflict.

Strong feelings

If I seem to have strong feelings about this, it is because I realize now, more than ever, just what this country means to me and all Americans... I realize now more than ever before what a fine country we have and I know, should any of you reading this, experience (and God forbid that you do) just a fraction of the time we spent in North Vietnamese prison camps, you, too would come back with the same feeling.

The resumption of bombing in the spring of 1972 was a blessing as far as I'm concerned and this was the attitude of most of the POWs with whom I shared a cell.

We felt the only way this conflict would be settled and we'd be free men again was to increase the pressure on North Vietnam, thus forcing a negotiation on reasonable terms. After years of sitting waiting, we decided the only way we would gain our freedom again was to do just this.

As ironic as it may seem, we felt that our country had to do the following: 1) bomb Haiphong harbor and stop the shipment of goods; 2) mine the tributary rivers thus shutting off small craft transport via junk ships out of China, and, 3) increase the aerial bombardment on North Vietnam to the point where they would be convinced we were sincere in our stand and we would fulfill our commitments as agreed upon under the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO)...

Good news

Needless to say, when we heard the President had ordered the mining of the harbor and rivers and that B-52s had struck North Vietnam, we told each other we'd be home in six months.

We were wrong — we were home in three months.

I was not in Hanoi the night the first B-52s came, as I had been transferred to a camp in the mountains near the China border but later, just prior to release, I met some of the prisoners who were in Hanoi that night. One of them told how the prisoners remaining at the Hanoi Hilton climbed upon one another's shoulders to the windows near the ceiling to see the sight of the bombers sweeping over the city. He also told me of the tremendous reaction among the POWs who expressed their joy by laughing and cheering, figuring the end was near.

I feel we owe President Nixon a great deal of thanks and appreciation for allowing us to return home with honor as opposed to some other solutions put forth. I personally feel that the President made a very difficult decision, considering there was little public support. Yet due to his concern for the people not only in America but Southeast Asia as well, he had the courage of his convictions to make this decision that ultimately shortened the conflict.

Praises Nixon

It was a decision that also insured our honorable return home earlier than anticipated. I therefore have a tremendous respect and admiration for President Nixon and the Silent Majority who supported his cause.

A big shock to me upon my return was to learn how extensive the drug abuse problem had become among the young. I wonder at the lack of strength in our laws which would prohibit or discourage the pushers from inflicting their dope on our children. I would hope that we have not become so complacent, whether it be parent or government, to let this situation continue to the point where it would jeopardize the lives of our young people.

The clothing styles, certainly, I have been able to accept generally but I do not go for the wild, really colorful patterns and combinations I see today. Probably in time I'll go right along with the fad changes.

After all, wearing a striped shirt, polka dot tie and checked or plaid jacket is a lot different from a shapeless, black, long sleeved shirt tied in the front with string sewn to the hem.

I would have to say that I do like, enjoy and appreciate the women's styles of today. We had hoped that the style, brought to our attention by pilots shot down toward the end of the conflict, would not be changed... particularly the mini-skirt.

Notices growth

I immediately noticed how much the community had grown during my absence. This growth was reflected in the many civic and governmental buildings that had risen while I was gone; the miles of new expressways; literally hundreds of new homes, townhouses, condominiums and schools.

Even though I've been home only a relatively short time, I do feel that I am cognizant of the changes and the improvements in our society in regards to equality for the races. I find less discrimination than when I left and much more understanding between blacks and whites, particularly.

One of the most important changes is that there seems to be a rebirth of patriotism and unity as reflected by the bumper stickers, the flying flags and the general emphasis of Americanism in our daily lives. This, indeed, is heartwarming for me. It is almost as if society today is trying to atone for the general dissent of a few years ago on our streets and on our campuses.

Our image

Politically, the changes have not been all that great. I am disappointed about the Watergate incident and hope it will not damage this country's image abroad among our allies and the young, emerging nations whom we are trying to help in pursuit of a democratic rule.

As for the future, I am undecided at this moment whether to continue my military career or seek employment in private enterprise. The military way of life has been good to me and my family. We've enjoyed it, particularly the travel and the many people we've met along the way but I do really hate to leave my community which would be required if I stayed in uniform.

My community means a lot to me. The neighbors have done so much for my family, not only during my period of confinement but prior to that as well, when I was required to be away from home for extended periods of time.

It was a wonderful feeling, during my captivity, to know that my family was being taken care of not only by the military but by relatives, friends and neighbors. It was a source of comfort and gave me peace of mind.

In that respect I feel I owe deep gratitude to the neighbors, friends and relatives who have watched over my family and did so much for them during those dark and lonely years.

I feel I live not only in the greatest country in the world but also among the greatest people in the finest community.

Thankful POW

It would only be natural, then, for me to prefer to stay within my community and enjoy its friendship and neighborliness while repaying, by whatever means I can, the indebtedness I feel in my heart that I owe each and everyone.

Since my return, I feel a personal obligation not only to my community but to all the people of America to express to them our thoughts, ideas and prayers and to give thanks to all those who did not forget us and supported our cause, thus insuring our return home to country and families.

I guess, in reality, I have the same love, respect, gratitude and sincere affection for the vast majority of those who did so much for us in assuring our return as they evidenced for us.

I intend to express that feeling at every opportunity.

This story is just a portion of that expression.

It's sidewalk sales time in Belleville

SIDEWALK SALE SAVINGS - The stream of strolling customers was continuous during last year's sidewalk sales program. Officials are looking toward a new sales record this year. Downtown merchants have prepared numerous attractive bargains.

It's sidewalk sales time again in Belleville.

Belleville's 15th annual, community-wide sales event opens Friday and Saturday. Retail merchants in the Belleville area will be taking part with sidewalk displays of their wares.

The popular two-day sales program sponsored by the Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce will offer bargains galore. Jim Springer of Gamble's Department Store and Darwin Kureth of Kureth's Department Store, co-chairmen of this year's sales have announced that downtown merchants have given their full support to the traditional event.

THIS YEAR'S program includes many extra specials both for inside and outside sidewalk displays by retail merchants.

The hours for the two-day program will be from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

It is the hope of chamber of commerce officials that this year's sidewalk sales surpass last year's record crowds. Area merchants urge everyone to come to town this weekend and enjoy the bargains.

STORE SHELVES will be filled with attractive, top-grade merchandise. This year as last a flea market will be conducted in a vacant lot opposite Kureth's Store on Main Street. Space still is available and persons or groups and organizations wanting to participate in the flea market are asked to contact Darwin Kureth.

A carnival atmosphere always is prevalent throughout sidewalk sales days, Belleville's biggest sales event.

Take care to prevent accidents

Visibility can mean survival on bike

Anyone who mounts the saddle of a motorcycle has got to think about survival.

Accidents — bad accidents — come easy for the cyclist. He has all the hazards of automobile travel plus several of his own. In addition, when an accident occurs it is likely to be spectacular and the injuries severe. The cyclist doesn't have the built-in protection of an automobile, imperfect as that is.

A prominent middle-aged man in an eastern city decided to abandon the bumper-to-bumper rush hour scene in favor of a motorcycle with its convenience and economy.

IT WAS NO one's fault, really, and it was a low-speed accident. But that split second when the auto driver couldn't see the motorcycle in the intersection left the cyclist a mass of broken bones.

After months in the hospital he recovered enough to return to work, but he will spend the rest of his life knowing pain in his deformed and crippled body.

Visibility. That's the message government safety experts are sounding to try to prevent such accidents: if you get on a motorcycle be sure the cars and trucks on the road can see you.

During the day, bright-colored and even headlights may help. At night they suggest lavish use of retro-reflective material on clothing and sides of the motorcycle (in addition to headlights, of course). This is the same material that is used to produce the highway and street signs that "light up" at night.

The safety helmet continues to be the best single factor in cutting the death and injury risk when accidents do occur. (And they do occur: 328,000 in 1971 with 2,410 fatalities.)

SO IMPORTANT is the safety helmet that nearly every state has passed strict laws requiring their use.

It was too late, however, for young Joe P. who was passenger on a motorcycle ride home from a nearby college town in a southern state. The driver died instantly; Joe lay in a coma for weeks, awakening finally with severe brain damage. He lives in apparent good physical health, but the once-promising young man will eventually move into an institution after his parents can no longer care for him at home.

THERE ARE other protections recommended by the injury control specialists at the Bureau of Community Environmental Management, a component of HEW's Health Services and Mental Health Administration:

—Goggles or face-shield, to improve vision and protect against flying gravel, etc.

—Tough clothing to help absorb the scrapes, scratches, cuts and bumps — leather jacket and gloves, sturdy trousers and footwear even in hot weather.

—A vehicle equipped with rear view mirror and wind-shield.

Stiffer penalties for killing of game

The waning Upper Peninsula deer herd will have a chance for survival as a result of an amendment introduced by State Reps. Charles H. Varnum (R-Manistique) and Dominic J. Jacobetti (R-Negaunee). The amendment establishing a "no-doe" season was adopted by the House. It provides stiffer penalties for those convicted of illegally taking game.

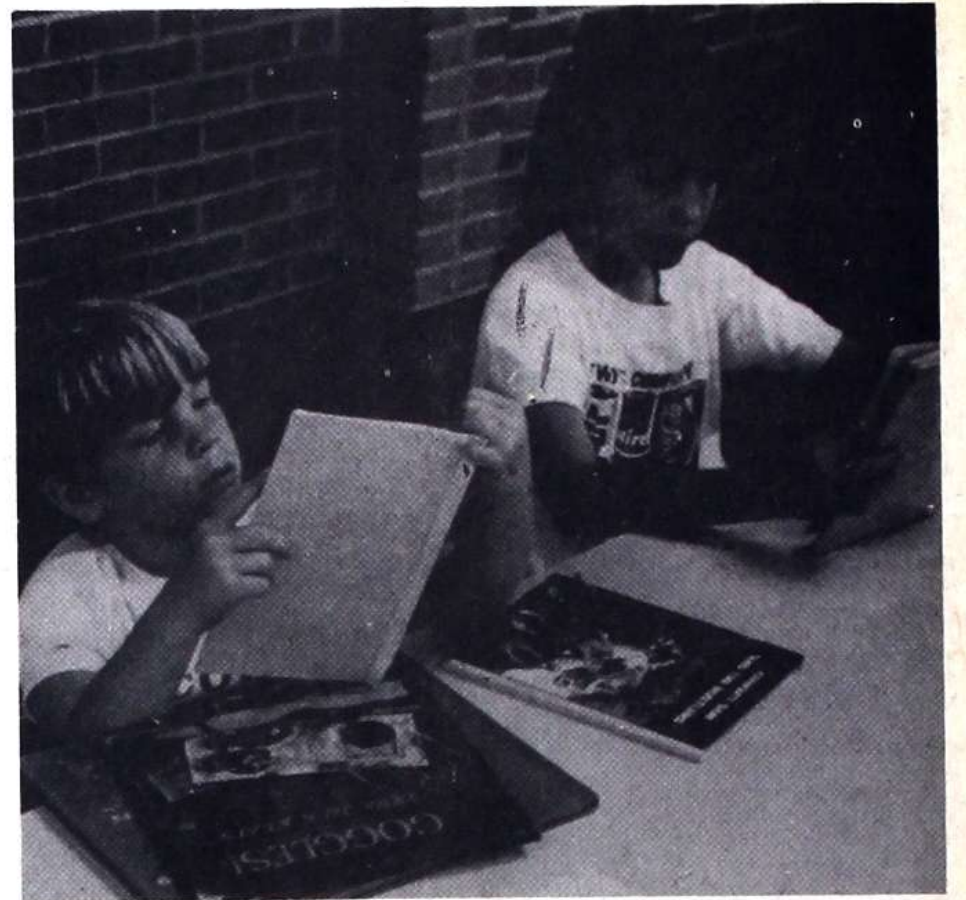

A moratorium on doe-taking has been needed in the Upper Peninsula for the past several years, Varnum said.

"It is obvious to those of us who live and visit frequently in the U. P. that the deer herd has been reduced drastically in the last several years due to the open season hunting of doe.

A TEMPORARY moratorium on the taking of doe will result in a larger production of fawns and will increase the size of the deer herd back to the level we once knew."

The amendment was attached to a bill which significantly increases the penalties for those convicted of illegally taking game.

OFF THE READING LIST — Rex Boatright, 7, and his sister, Kathy, 10, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Al Boatright, 34085 McBride Rd., Romulus, take time out to read at the Romulus public library during the summer.

Rex's book, "Here Comes the Strikeout" and Kathy's book, "Troublemaker" are both on the reading list recommended as part of the library's "Summer Reading Program" for children.

Area residents should watch for small, purple lawn spots

Small purple spots, rings of dead grass and lawn areas speckled with white powder indicate lawn disease, according to a turfgrass pathologist at Michigan State University.

Tiny purple spots on grass leaves are the first symptom of Helminthosporium leaf spot, a fungus disease that attacks Kentucky bluegrass during cool, moist weather. Grass will thin out in late May or early June when the disease reaches the crown and root system. The disease also attacks red fescue during the warm weather in July and August.

"Circles of dead grass with healthy appearing green grass in the center are a good indication of fusarium blight infection," said pathologist Joseph Vargas. "This fungus disease often attacks Kentucky bluegrass lawns. Symptoms usually appear during dry periods."

LAWN AREAS that appear covered with flour or some other white, powdery substance are suffering from powdery mildew. It usually occurs in damp, shaded Kentucky bluegrass lawns. "Merion bluegrass is especially susceptible," Vargas said.

Disease control is essential.

Helminthosporium leaf spot can be chemically controlled with Actidione-Thiram, Fore, Daconil 2787 or Dyrene.

Mowing at a height of two to three inches and removing the clippings will help check the disease. In the Kentucky bluegrasses, resistant varieties (Merion, Fylking, Pennstar and Nugget) help avoid leaf spot.

For fusarium blight, Vargas recommends Benomyl (Tersan 1991). "Two applications give effective control in most situations," he said. "Application should be initiated at two-week intervals at the first sign of the disease."

Sale of personalized license plates disappoints Secretary of State Austin

Even though Michigan's first year sale of personalized license plates will top the 2,000 mark, Secretary of State Richard H. Austin is disappointed in the sales volume.

"We had hoped for a first year sale of between 5,000 and 10,000 personalized license plates," Austin said. "In order to meet our production cost, we felt that we would have to sell about 2,000 plates, and this we will do."

"Any money made after production was to have been turned over to the Michigan Highway Department to be used for road and highway cleanup."

"I certainly hope the highway department isn't counting on the sale of these plates to keep Michigan clean."

Austin said there are several reasons for the lack of sales:

Many Michigan motorists have just purchased 1973 license plate and are not interested in buying new 1974 plates.

Many motorists are unsure as to just what personalized licensed plate is.

Others may be interested in them but want to see them on vehicles first.

"Also, there is the $25 fee which, many feel is too high." However, of all the states selling personalized plates, and there are, Austin added, more than 20 of them, two charges $50, one charges $10, and one sells them for $5. All other states with the program are selling theirs for $25.

"And, as I said earlier, the money received from the sale of personalized plates will go to help keep Michigan clean."

Austin said the pattern of sales is about the same as that of the regular license plates. The response at the beginning was good, apparently because everyone wanted to be first to get that special plate number. The sale then slackened off for some time.

Those purchasing personalized license plates will receive the plates when the regular sale begins in November.

So far most of the requests have been for three letter combinations, presumably the motorist initials, Austin said. "Surprisingly, there have been few duplications. Betty, Steve and George are the three names most often asked for, yet there have been only three or four duplications for each of those names."

Energy crisis board organization eyed

By TOM OCHILTREE
Enterprise-Roman
Washington Correspondent
Rep. Philip E. Ruppe, (R-Mich.), has proposed a highly coordinated approach to the nation's energy crisis based on the creation of a five-member board responsive to Congress but largely independent of White House control.

Basically, Ruppe explained, he hopes to speed research activities into such areas as the practical application of solar and geothermal energy and wider use of still untapped coal reserves.

Ruppe, ranking minority member on the House Environment Subcommittee, told a news conference recently he had introduced legislation which he felt would make energy research and development "as free as possible from political pressure and flexible enough to respond to America's increasingly complex energy needs."

'The board would not be a captive of the White House in this or subsequent administrations.'

AT THE HEAT of Ruppe's bill is the provision for a five-member board which he visualized as formulating an aggressive policy of uncovering environmentally acceptable energy sources. The board "would not be a captive of the White House in this or subsequent administrations," he said.

The board would supplement and coordinate existing energy programs being carried on by the Atomic Energy Commission, the Interior Department and other federal agencies. It also would initiate new programs either on an "in house" basis or by contracting out specific projects to industries and universities.

Ruppe envisioned the board advancing on two fronts. First, it would deal separately with energy policy relating to the stimulation and regulation of known, marketable energy sources such as oil, natural gas and hydroelectric facilities. And second, it would formulate policy relating to the development of new energy technologies.

Members of the board, Ruppe said, would have to have a background of experience in the energy field. They could come from universities, scientific institutes or various branches of the energy industry but would have to sever such ties during their terms of office.

BOARD MEMBERS would be appointed by the President with confirmation by the Senate. They would be required to make an annual report to Congress on the whole scope of their activities the previous calendar year. The usual term of office for board members would be five years.

Ruppe's bill takes a different approach from the separate energy proposals advanced recently by the Nixon Administration and by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, (D-Wash.).

The administration's proposal would set up an Office of Energy policy within the executive office of the President. Its director would become a so-called energy czar and would serve as the administration's chief officer on energy matters.

Additionally the President's massive plan for reorganizing the Executive Department would call, among other things, for establishment of a new department of energy and natural resources headed by a cabinet member.

RUPPE DESCRIBED the White House plan as "a bureaucratic conglomerate." The congressman said, so far as the energy crisis is concerned, the nation cannot wait for the President's big reorganization plan to finally get adopted.

Ruppe criticized the management arrangements of Jackson's approach. Instead of an independent board, the Jackson proposal calls for creation of five public development corporations. Supported in part by private financing, in addition to the formation of a management project.

The three approaches also differ on cost. The administration wants $100 million earmarked in fiscal 1974 for the acceleration of on going research and then a total of $10 billion starting in fiscal 1975 for the next five years.

Jackson's bill calls for a total federal expenditure of about $20 billion over the next ten years. Ruppe's legislation anticipates a total expenditure of approximately $9.5 billion over the next five years with $4 billion devoted exclusively to activities of the board.

Area students get aid for tuition by Rotary

Two Belleville college students were recently presented with $500 tuition scholarships by the Belleville Rotary Club.

Collette Pollard, of 41435 Fret Rd., a June graduate of Belleville Senior High School, will attend Eastern Michigan University to study education and psychology.

Patricia Jerome, a 1972 graduate of Belleville high school will attend University of Michigan for her second year.

The club's scholarships are financed through proceeds from the annual raffle during Belleville's Sidewalk Sales and the annual Wayne County 4-H Fair held at the 4-H Fairgrounds near Belleville. Special projects also assist the scholarship fund.

The sidewalk sale will be held this weekend in downtown Belleville.

Belleville girl gets scholarship

A Belleville woman attending Eastern Michigan University was awarded a board of regents tuition scholarship for the 1973-74 academic year. She is Ruthann Smith, 240 W. Columbia.

The afternoon session will begin with a panel discussion by Congressman Philip M.

Crane, R-Illinois, Congressman Robert J. Huber, R-18th District, Mich. and Congressman Samuel L. Devine, R-Ohio.

CRANE IS A MEMBER of the House Banking and Currency Committee and a recognized expert on Panama Canal affairs. His topic include business as an endangered species.

Huber, honorary chairman of the Conservative Party of Michigan, is a member of the House Education and Labor Committee. He will discuss legislation concerning labor and education, including the busing issue.

Congressman Devine is the ranking Republican member of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. He will speak on foreign commerce, the trend of the 93rd Congress and compare it with its predecessors. A question and answer period will be held at each session.

"The Conference is designed to bring government back to the people," Andrews said. "We will have the undivided attention of some of America's great political leaders. This is our opportunity to let them know what we think."

THE REGISTRATION FEE for the conference is $10 for members of the Conservative Party of Michigan and $12 for non-members. This includes luncheon.

Registrations, with check to cover, should be sent to: Conservative Party of Michigan, P.O. Box 917, Royal Oak, Mi. 48067; phone: 543-7222. For overnight ac-

BIKE SAFETY THERAPY—Leland Guilford, 17, destined to enter the U.S. Navy later this month, held a Bicycle Safety Clinic on Ecorse Road in Romulus last weekend to complete his Eagle Scout requirements. As part of the clinic, he checked each bike for safety and with the assistance of other scouts, tested each child's ability to handle his vehicle on a special safety course. Having her bike checked by Guilford is Elizabeth Profit (top) while Kevin Profit and Mark Bishop maneuver through the course after completing their checks. Guilford had to complete the community service task to earn his Eagle Scout Badge before he turns 18 in October and is disqualified.

things to assist them in school and will have opportunities for socializing with children their own age.

Applications for a nursery teacher position are being received at the YWCA office. Telephone LO1-4110, program director division.

Computer to speed checks to students

A new Veterans Administration (VA) computer program to speed checks to G.I. Bill students is expected to become operational next month.

In announcing the new "one stop" service, VA Administrator Donald E. Johnson said that when VA receives separation papers from the military, computers will automatically generate a package of papers to veterans.

These include a Certificate of Eligibility required when applying for any VA benefit, an application for education or training, and a form for schools to use to certify enrollment.

Previously, each of these was a separate step for students or schools.

THE PACKAGE also will tell veterans their remaining G.I. Bill eligibility time, about counseling and tutorial services, how to apply for educational assistance and about courses that may be selected for training.

Johnson said that under this new concept, veterans can complete the application and present it, along with the eligibility certificate to school officials at the time of registration.

The school, in turn, will complete the enrollment portion and forward the entire package to VA for processing.

The first benefit checks should be received shortly after.

Fire personnel busy in June

The Van Buren Township Fire Department responded to 17 calls in June, the department's monthly report disclosed.

The fire runs included two false alarms, one grass fire, one house trailer fire, one apartment building fire, one barn fire, five car fires, one broken water main, two calls on high tension wires down and three assistance runs.

Department personnel spent about 113 hours on stand-by duty at the fire hall located in downtown Belleville after trouble with telephone lines.

WHEN VETERANS request advance payment on the application forms, checks will be waiting at the institution for delivery to them upon registration.

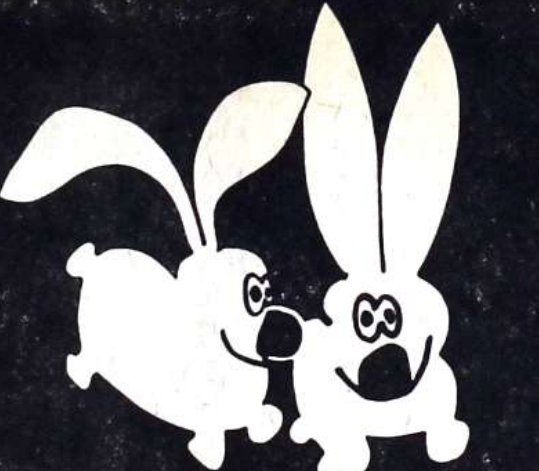

Schools with approved courses for veterans have been notified of the new form and procedure.

Ukrainians to feature festival on riverfront

The first Ukrainian family came to Detroit in 1897. Today there are 100,000 Ukrainians in the metropolitan area. Representatives of this large population will be at the downtown Cobo Hall Riverfront Friday through Sunday greeting visitors to the city's free Ukrainian Ethnic Festival.

At the Festival will be the Shevchenko Bandurists Chorus. (The bandura has a sound similar to the mandolin.) The Chorus will be featured Sunday after an entire afternoon of bandurist soloists, duets, quartets and larger groups from Detroit and other cities.

Ukrainian dancers from Our Lady of Perpetual Help Ukrainian Catholic Church and the St. Marys Protectress Ukrainian Mandolin Orthodox Church will perform in costume. The Kobzar Ukrainian Mandolin Orchestra, the Ondusky Family String Ensemble and the St. Michael's Ukrainian Youth Singers.

Campers migrate to park

Harrisville State Park is little in size but big with campers. It's the smallest of seven state parks along picturesque Lake Huron. But it has the second largest number of campsites, and last year ranked fourth in attendance despite its far northern location, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Located just south of Harrisville on US-23, the 94-acre park offers scenery, woods and a half-mile of Lake Huron sandy beach. Swimming is good. Another highlight is a mile-long foot trail which winds through a cedar swamp and among the pines. There also is a variety of wildlife, including birds.

NEARBY STREAMS offer fishing for trout, bass and panfish.

Harrisville's 229 campsites are modern and have electricity. The campground has privacy due to dense tree growth and is close to the beach. There are several boat launching sites.

Other features for campers include a laundry, city water and trailer sanitation disposal station. Also in the Harrisville area are two county parks, Alcona County Parks Nos. 1 and 2. Both offer space for tents and trailers. Lakes around Harrisville include Horse Shoe, Jewell and Hubbard.

NORTH OF Harrisville on US-23 is an unusual attraction, Hall of an Ancient Man, with many prehistoric relics and displays. West of Harrisville, just off M-72, are the towns of Lincoln, Barton City and Mikado. All are fine shopping and service centers for visitors.

—For your— Entertainment

ENTERTAINMENT will begin on the hour. Festival hours are 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and noon to 11 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

At 4 p.m. Sunday the Ukrainian National Women's League will model their distinctive native costumes.

Some historical costumes, including copies of clothing worn 1,000 years ago by Princess Olga and St. Vladimir the Great also will be modeled.

The intricate craft of designing Ukrainian Easter eggs, Pysanky, will be demonstrated throughout the weekend. Materials for making Pysanky at home will be available. Other crafts will include Ukrainian cross-stitching and embroidery. ONE BOOTH will display a variety of Ukrainian embroidered articles, wood-carvings, ceramics, dolls and Pysanky.

There will be an information booth with a variety of books, maps and pamphlets about Ukrainians. It will be shaped and painted in the form of Pysanky.

Food for sale will include varenyky filled with potato, sauerkraut or cheese. There will be holubtsi of rice, meat and buckwheat; pirohy; tortes; pastry and breads.

Train group toots arrival at museum

Representative items from the Glancy train collection will be on view on the second floor of the Detroit Historical Museum, Woodward at Kirby, beginning this week.

The Detroit Historical Museum recently received the gift of the unique Alfred R. Glancy, Jr. train collection - the result of a life-long interest. The collection includes not only trains but all types of accessories - houses, railway stations, cars, oil derricks, loading devices, plus a circus, a wild west show, a farm and a replica of the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club.

Because of the sheer volume of items which must be sorted and catalogued, it will be several months before the collection can be shown in working order. Hopefully, the Museum's Christmas toy show will feature this year, for the first time, the Alfred R. Glancy, Jr. train collection.

The historical museum is offering a host of activities and displays during August to make the last weeks of summer a fun-filled time. Reservations may be made by calling 321-1701.

Auto jaunts save energy in long run

Vacations conserve energy, according to the president of the Recreational Vehicle Institute.

"A family on a vacation uses less than one fourth the amount of energy consumed at home," Robert L. Stewart, Institute president said.

Although many people are reluctant to plan summer vacations and weekend trips out of concern over the current energy shortage, Stewart said their concerns are mistaken.

"A family of four living in an average-sized home normally use about four times more electricity and natural gas than the same family on a recreation vehicle vacation.

Stewart noted that many families today are operating two or more automobiles. "The vacationer in a camper is only using one," he added.

In comparing gasoline use, Stewart said the average homeowning family with two cars totals around 300 miles per week and most auto-vacationers travel no farther than 300 miles from home.

Stewart said his institute is planning a promotional campaign to encourage families to take vacations.

Wayne's Hillberry Theater opens season with comedy

The Hillberry Theatre will start its second decade in 1973-74 with a season that includes two Shakespeare tragedies, "Hamlet" and "Julius Caesar," two Continental comedies, Moliere's "Tartuffe" and Molnar's "The Play's the Thing," and a pre-Broadway production of a contemporary play, "The Ruling Class."

Two productions held over from last season, "The Crucible" and "Cat Among the Pigeons," will fill out the schedule. The theatre has been closed during the summer for needed renovations, including the installation of new seats and carpeting, new electrical wiring and the reconstruction of backstage areas, all scheduled for completion before the new season begins. THE OFFICIAL celebration for the opening season of the second decade will be the President's Preview on November 2. Ferenc Molnar's comic tour de force, "The Play's the Thing," in the English adaptation by P. G. Wodenhouse, will be presented that evening to theatre sponsors at a special performance and reception. The play will continue in the repertory until early February.

A revival from last season and school performances of "Julius Caesar" will get started in October. Georges Feydeau's farce, "Cat Among the Pigeons," opens Friday evening, October 12, and plays until mid-December. "Julius Caesar" begins Wednesday afternoon, October 17.

Most of the regular public performances of the all-new production of "Julius Caesar" will be in the winter months, January to March, playing just ten years after the same play opened the new theatre, January 14, 1964.

"Hamlet," the other Shakespeare play on the season and the one most frequently requested in last year's audience poll, opens in February and plays through April.

PETER BARNES' "The Ruling Class," the London stage hit that was made into the recent film of the same name, joins the repertory in March and continues through the end of the season, May 25. The play has not appeared on Broadway, and no definite plans have yet been announced for its New York production.

English 'fruit fool' for warm weather

MISS DOTY

November wedding date set

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Doty of 17320 Renton Rd., Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sandra, to Richard J. Laurie, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Laurie of 17876 Martinsville Rd., Belleville.

Miss Doty is a 1970 graduate of Belleville High School.

Her fiancé, a 1966 graduate of Belleville High School, is employed by the Draw-tite firm in Belleville.

The wedding is planned for Nov. 3 at the First United Methodist Church, Belleville.

The old English recipe for fruit fools is still a classic way to use the fresh fruits of summer.

A 1741 recipe (from "The Family Magazine Containing Useful Directions in All the Branches of House-keeping and Cookery") describes the delights of this dessert:

"Take either currants, mulberries, raspberries or strawberries, sprinkle them with a little rose-water; press out the juice, and draw the milk out of the cow's udder into it; sweeten it with a little sugar, and beat it well with birchen twigs, till it froth up; then stew over it a little fine beaten cinnamon, and it will be an excellent mess."

Today, the recipe is simpler. You can use a variety of fresh fruits all summer long. But right now, you'll want to take advantage of the crisp California seedless grapes filling our markets. The grape crop forecast is excellent - almost a Vintage season - and the popular seedless grapes should be available through October.

For our recipes today, as well as for refreshing out-of-hand snacking, you'll want to be sure to select plump, ripe grapes. Seedless grapes are so convenient, too - all you do is wash them under a gentle spray of water, pat dry with paper towels and they're ready to use.

Based on a velvety combination of sweetened grapes and whipped cream, our grape fool is simple and quick to prepare. Light, yet refreshing, it's a lovely way to end a summer meal.

For those of you who can't quite afford the luxury of whipped cream in your diet, try our variation on a "fool" theme - Spiced Grape Compote. The idea is still the same, but a little less caloric. Remember though, a whole cupful of grapes is under a 100 calories. So, if your variation doesn't make your diet list either, just eat the grapes!

GRAPE FOOL

3 cups Thompson seedless grapes
1/2 cup sugar
Juice of half lemon
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
Combine grapes, 1/4 cup of sugar and lemon juice in saucepan. Cook (covered to steam) over low heat for 5 minutes. Crush grapes slightly. Chill. Just before serving, marble grape mixture into the whipped cream sweetened with the rest of the sugar.
Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SPICED GRAP COMPOTE

3 cups grapes
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup orange juice
3 cinnamon sticks
Combine ingredients in saucepan. Cook over low heat for 5 minutes. Serve warm or chilled.
Makes 4 to 6 servings.

FROSTY GREEN GRAPES add a sprightly and spiced counterpart...a lovely way to end a flavor note to traditional English fruit fool summer meal.

Young Family Day is something new

Want to put a new wrinkle in your vacation this year?

Then plan to be in East Lansing Aug. 13 to attend Michigan State University's first educational program for the whole family.

Young Family Day is a joint project of the Family Living Education and 4-H Youth programs of the Cooperative Extension Service.

"As far as we know, Young Family Day is the first program of its kind anywhere," says Gail Imig, Family Living Education program leader and co-chairman of the event with Dixie Hesler, 4-H program leader. "We're really hoping that vacationers will take advantage of it."

"It's a great opportunity to see the campus, be part of the university for a day, take some classes and meet some of the professors," she continues. "But most of all it's a chance for the whole family to learn and have fun together, a chance to enhance family interaction and strengthen family togetherness."

The day's activities are in the form of university classes, Mrs. Imig explains. Some — like marital enrichment — are designed for parents only. Some — "How to Deal with Problem Parents," for example — are for children and youth only and some are for the whole family. Among these are "Family Fun with Sports," "A Family Look at Ecology," infant and toddler enrichment and, for families with teen-aged children, "Parent-Child Communication."

Young Family Day is an experimental program. "Hopefully," Mrs. Imig says, "it will demonstrate some of the things counties and areas can do. Many areas have programs just for women, 4-H for the kids and something else for the men. With Young Family Day we're trying to show how you can plan fun, educational experiences for the whole family."

Young Family Day programs, with details of classes and registration, are available from your county extension home economist or by contacting Mrs. Imig directly at 103 Human Ecology Building, MSU, East Lansing, Mich. 48823.

A THOUGHT TO REMEMBER

BY HAROLD REDISKE, DIRECTOR

"The old man trusts wholly in slow contrivance and gradual progression: the youth expects to force his way by genius, vigor and precipitation. The old man pays regard to riches, and the youth reverences virtue. The old man desires prudence; the youth commits himself to magnanimity and chance. The young man, who intends no ill, believes that none is intended, and therefore acts with openness and candor; but his father, having suffered the injuries of fraud, is impelled to suspect, and too often allured to practice it. Age looks with anger on the temerity of youth, and youth with contempt on the scrupulosity of age." ...Written by Samuel Johnson over 200 years ago.

The generation gap posed problems in those days too. In recent years however, a vast majority of elders recoil in revulsion - as never before - at antics of a minority of youth. Unprecedented violence shows the urgent need for changed attitudes. How can it be done? ... It appears a 20th century Solomon is badly needed. It is hoped he appears somewhere - soon...

Bridesmaids in pastels attend Diane Silvey

The Community United Methodist Church, Romulus, was the setting for the July wedding of Diane Silvey of Romulus and Bruce Strachan, of Westland.

The Rev. Haldon Ferris officiated at the double ring ceremony uniting in marriage the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon C. Silvey of 36831 Porter, Romulus, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Strachan of 34675 California, Romulus.

Special musical selections for the ceremony were provided by Mrs. Benjamin Scott. The selections were "Theme from Romeo and Juliet," and "We've Only Just Begun."

ESCORTED TO her bridegroom by her father, the bride wore an A-line gown of white embroidered nylon over satin, made with a bodice in the empire style featuring a high collar and baby doll sleeves. Lace trimmed the collar, sleeves and edged the skirt that ended in a brief train.

Blue ribbon and lace trimmed the bandeau headpiece holding the bride's lace and ribbon-trimmed veil and she carried a bouquet of white roses and blue sweetheart roses.

In the role of maid of honor, Miss Geri Ries of Romulus, wore a light blue halter-topped dress, the bodice in a knit solid, over an A-line skirt made with a pastel floral print on a blue background. She completed her ensemble with a blue picture hat and carried blue daisies and baby's breath in her bouquet.

Bridesmaids for the ceremony were Marguerite and Patricia Silvey of Romulus, sisters of the bride; Sue Meyer and Debbie Chrisman, both of Romulus.

They wore gowns styled the same as that worn by the maid of honor, each with a contrasting top and floral skirt. The halter tops were yellow, pink, lavender and peach, respectively, picking up a shade of the flowers on the skirts. Their picture hats were in white and they carried pink daisies and white baby's breath.

THE BRIDEGROOM asked William Evitts of Romulus, to assume the duties of best man.

Groomsmen for the ceremony were Kenneth McMann, Douglas Strachan, brother of the bridegroom; James McBride and Joseph Player, all of Romulus.

For the wedding and reception, Mrs. Silvey wore a pink knit ensemble, complementing accessories and a corsage of pink carnations and sweetheart roses, while Mrs. Strachan chose a blue knit, matching accessories and a corsage of blue carnations and sweetheart roses.

A reception for 225 guests was held at the Romulus Progressive Hall after the ceremony. Later, the newlyweds left to honeymoon in Florida for a week.

They are making their home in Westland on their return.

The former Miss Silvey is a 1972 graduate of Romulus High School and a 1971 graduate of the Romulus Beautician School. She is employed at Sadie's Beauty Salon in Wayne. Her bridegroom is a 1972 graduate of Romulus High School and is employed at the Ford Motor Company Transmission plant in Livonia.

Economy prices too expensive

A USDA study of food prices paid by urban families across the country shows that small families pay higher prices per unit (pound, package, etc.) than larger families because small families cannot efficiently use economy size packages of food. A single person paid prices 11 percent higher and a two-member family paid prices 7 percent higher than a six-member household. However, lower prices paid by larger families were also attributed to their selection of lower grades and less expensive varieties of foods.

Square deal

If your add-a-room project must be a budget job, keep the shape to a square. Triangles, octagons, curves, off-sets, indentations all run up the costs.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Deering recently celebrated their 47th wedding anniversary by taking a trip to Ohio, Iowa and Kansas. In Marion, O., they visited the birthplace of former President Herbert Hoover and the Hoover Museum. While in Iowa they visited the Amana Colonies, which consist of seven villages. The Colonies were settled by people of German descent who formerly lived in Ebenazer Settlement near Buffalo, New York. With the expanding of Buffalo the group moved to Iowa to more open country. In Wichita, Kansas, the Deerings visited their nephew and family. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Striewoski.

After lunch the group went to the home of Velma Kultzer for an afternoon of reminiscing.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland (Dutch) Fry have been entertaining a houseguest and friend of longstanding, Mrs. Sophia (Vujnov) Kauten of Holiday, Fla. MR. AND MRS. Harold Clayton of Bedell Street, and Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Mann of Wayne, enjoyed a vacation that took them to the Smoky Mountains, along the Blue Ridge Parkway, and Skyline drive. They continued on to Washington, D.C.; Atlantic, N.H.; Lancaster, Pa. and Gettysburg Pa. before returning home.

Callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Miller on Sunday, July 22, were their daughter, Mrs. Eugene Mengel of Ann Arbor, and their son, Elmer Miller of Garden City.

MRS. PAT Smith of Flint

NOTABLES — George Keovil of Detroit was a dinner guest of David Young at the Young home last Monday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Merle Touse enjoyed a picnic with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Truax of Trenton, last Wednesday evening at Huron Metropolitan Park. Mrs. Frank Hoag of Liberty Street spent several days at the Seven Day Advent Church Camp in Grand Ledge. Mrs. Minnie Moser of San Antonio, Texas, is spending the summer with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoag.

ON SUNDAY, July 22, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Touse, accompanied by the former's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Touse of Ypsilanti, drove to Hillsdale to spend the day with Mr. and Mrs. Gale Touse, and a sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Scovill. The get together was to celebrate the birthdays of Mrs. Scovill and their brother, Glenn. All attended church at the College Baptist Church, in Hillsdale and also visited the old Touse home, where the family lived when they were growing up.

The Frank Hoag's entertained at a picnic recently. Present were their daughter-in-law Mrs. Donald Hoag and granddaughter, Linda, from Jackson, plus two 4-H members visiting in Michigan from Nebraska. The Donald Hoag's were hosts to the two out-of-state visitors.

David Hoag of Jackson, and Bobby Lee Hoag of Ann Arbor, called on their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoag to wish them Happy Anniversary. July 7 was the Hoag's 56th Anniversary.

She would enjoy hearing from friends.

Refrigerate lettuce when you get home. However, if you plan to use it the same day, remove the core with a sharp knife or by rapping the bottom of the head sharply on a wooden board. Then hold the head upside down under running water. The water pressure will push the leaves gently apart. Dry the leaves and wrap in a towel. Place them in the refrigerator until ready to use.

Though salad is the basic use for lettuce, it's not the only one. Outer leaves of lettuce can be stuffed like cabbage. To soften lettuce leaves, soak them briefly in boiling water. Drain, dry and fill with cooked chopped ham and cheese combination, minced corned beef hash or cooked ground beef. Steam in a vegetable steamer about ten minutes.

Serve cooked shredded lettuce smothered with stewed tomatoes. Or cook fresh green peas covered with lettuce leaves to enhance the flavor.

Watergate holds hope

By EDWARD E. MAHALAK
State Representative, 38th District

The house has approved and sent to the senate a series of bills to improve benefits for members of the Detroit and outstate school employees, state employees and state police retirement systems.

One of the main features of the bills is an automatic cost-of-living adjustment of a maximum of 2 per cent per year for retirees, starting next January. There will also be a $25 per month hike in health benefits.

The bills affect some 7,000 retired and 21,000 active Detroit school employees, 27,000 retired and 240,000 active outstate school employees, 8,900 retired and 54,000 active state employees, and 450 retired and 1,900 active state police employees.

In order to cover some of the costs of the increased benefits, school employee contributions to the retirement fund were increased from 5 to 6 per cent of salaries. Bills to affect state and state police employees in a like manner are pending.

The total cost of the retirement package to the state has been set at $58.5 million. There was vigorous debate on the bills, but only limited opposition when they came up for a vote. Opponents objected to the effect of the bills on the state budget, while supporters pointed out that the retirees are badly in need of improved pension benefits.

I feel that this legislation is a realistic approach to the problems of retired public service employees who have been caught in the squeeze of a fixed income and inflationary costs-of-living. It will mean additional security and a better life for public service employees.

The legislature has approved the state budget bills. One of the most difficult areas was the school aid appropriations where House and Senate versions were far apart. The bill, like most other budget bills, was sent to a house-senate conference committee to work out a suitable compromise.

As amended by the house, the capital outlay bill for community and junior colleges calls for a total appropriation of $152,750. The house version of the public recreation fund capital outlay program calls for spending of $4.6 million. The major change in the house was the inclusion of a recreation program for state urban projects totaling $909,000.

After both houses approved compromise school aid bills and finalized work on the state budget, they recessed for the summer. Lawmakers will return on Oct. 16 to wrap up the 1973 legislative session.

Chamber chatter

Bills aid wage benefits

By ARCH BOOTH, Executive Vice-President,
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

"This is no time to become cynical."

We in the business community need to maintain a wholesome perspective and positive attitude with respect to the Watergate revelations.

They are shocking of course. Much is being said about the effect on the ability of the President to govern effectively, and the slowing down of government machinery. These are valid concerns.

Over 50 governmental officials have been connected with the break-in of the Democratic headquarters in the Watergate complex in Washington D.C., including some of President Nixon's closest advisers. A U.S. Senate committee and a grand jury are investigating the charges and reports of the Watergate incident.

IF THE WATERGATE scandals reveal weaknesses in our popular government, they also reveal its chief strength: The built-in correction mechanism of our separation of powers. No other system has it. Our political system can meet this crisis, as it has many others.

This is no time to become cynical. Much good may come of Watergate. Historically, curative action has followed revelation of our faults.

Government must go on. In world affairs, we must maintain our leadership and our security.

AT HOME, there are many challenges begging for imaginative solutions which the enterprise system can provide in a conducive climate.

Romulus boy scouts award medals at outdoor meeting

A varied program ensued when Pack 830 of Romulus held a recent outdoor meeting at Hayti School.

A campfire ceremony was held for John Gray, Greg Losacco, Kevin Morgel and Jeff Suessine, who were all welcomed into Boy Scout Troop 830 by Tony Suessine, assistant scoutmaster.

Kevin Morgel also received his Arrow of Light award and all the boys received their three-year service star and perfect attendance bars.

PARTICIPATING in the opening ceremony for the meeting were John Gray, Greg Losacco and Jeff Suessine, who, under the direction of Webelo leader Joy

Gray, told the group of their adventures as cub scouts.

Cakes raffled during the meeting were donated by Marilyn Mazer, Jeannie Ursery and Gloria West. Michelle Gray won one of the cakes.

- People are more important than things. Human needs should be given first priority in all cases.
- Public money is everyone's money. (Some people treat it like no one's money.)
- Unbiased, unemotional study must be made of Romulus-Airport problems and long range planning is essential.
- Ordinances should be either changed or enforced, not ignored.
- Romulus must have the best in health safety and protection. How to get the best needs to be determined.
- Problems pertaining to fixed incomes need attention.
- The need for better roads is evident. Wise expenditure of current funds is part of the answer.
- A stabilized tax base, secure property values, self-contained shopping centers are important in attracting residents and business to a community.
- Policy makers must be concerned, conscientious, hard-working, informed and devoted.

AMONG THE VIPS — Ex-Windsorite Mike Smith has given golf pointers to some of the most powerful and wealthiest men in the world, including the late Lyndon Baines Johnson, president of the United States. Johnson and Smith are seen ready to shove off for a round of golf. Smith is the golf pro at the Acapulco Princess Hotel and course.

Sports Meridian

This Smith golfed his way to Acapulco

By TOM MOORADIAN

If Walter Mitty had time to add to his numerous characters he probably would have loved to play Mike Smith.

Mitty, the ever-dreaming, hen-pecked creation of James Thurber, was the pilot shooting down the enemy, the gambler who won the big pot with the low hand, the doctor, philosopher — you name it — that's what Mitty hoped to be and dreamed he was.

But if Thurber's character had added an athlete to his long list of heroes, then Smith would have been a logical choice.

Good-looking, articulate, personable, Smith, an ex-Windsorite is presently the golf pro at one of the world's most famous — and plush courses — the Acapulco Princess in Mexico, a course a few steps away from the multi-million dollar Princess Hotel.

He's been the pro there for the past three years and "...has enjoyed every minute of it."

"I was working at the Kings Inn & Golf Club in Free Port, in the Grand Bahamas," relates Smith, "when they approached me about this job. Of course I was really excited about it and grabbed it."

As the golf pro he has done things — and taught V.I.P.s — only Mitty could dream of.

The late Lyndon B. Johnson was one of his pupils.

"At first, they, the Secret Service people, would not let anyone photograph Johnson. It was really difficult," said Smith, to work. "But later the atmosphere became relaxed. In fact, we became very close friends. The weekend before his death, I was invited to the L.B.J. ranch — in Johnson City, Texas and we had an interesting discussion.

"One night after everyone else had retired, he and I sat for quite some time and the ex-president recalled some of his experiences in the White House." Mike refused to divulge the contents of the talks but added, "if anyone would have told me a couple years ago I would be a guest at the LBJ Ranch, and a president of the United States would discuss politics with a kid from Windsor, I'd tell him he was out of his mind."

Mike, who was 30 last February 28, grew up in Windsor where he attended Herman Elementary School. He later went to the University of Windsor where he earned his degree in Business Administration.

He took up golfing when he was eight-years-old and had a shot at the PGA tour in 1967 when it was in the Caribbean, but didn't make it.

"Among the many things that I'm indebted to my father for is that he advised me to get my education so if I didn't make it in golf, I would have something to fall back on," Smith said.

Married in 1967 to an English girl whom he became acquainted with while in the Bahamas, the Smiths have a five-month old son, Lawrence Lyndon Smith.

"Mr. Johnson was so kind to me — he organized a birthday party at his ranch in my honor. He even phoned my mother who is presently living in South Carolina. Mum flipped when she heard the president's voice. She thought I was kidding when I told her I was at the LBJ ranch."

Mike has also tutored such prominent persons as Bob Hope, Johnny Carson, Sammy Davis Jr., Lawrence Welk, Walter Cronkite and Ed McMahon and J. P. McCarthy, to name a few.

One of his best kept "secrets" is that Mrs. Hope (Dolores) is a better golfer than her husband.

"Now there's one couple that have been on a perpetual honeymoon," he added. "They're just wonderful people." The Hopes have been married for nearly 50 years.

Kid Power, Diamonds win big Gals begin softball playoffs

The playoffs in the Romulus Ladies Softball League began with a bang Saturday, as Kid Power and City Diamonds exploded past opening-round foes.

The Seekers took a beating from Kid Power, 42-5, while City Diamonds were pouncing the Roadrunners, 23-2, to advanced in the single-elimination tournament.

In other playoff games, Odd Squad downed City Hall Gals, 6-1, and the Ms Fits whipped Keljoys, 19-11.

KID POWER, which still faces a regular-season showdown with the Keljoys for second place to decide which club will automatically advance to the City Championship, took the first step in assuring them selves of a second route to the championships by whipping the Seekers.

Vickie and Terecia Gray and Vet Casey slugged six hits apiece for the winners, and Vickie led her team's nine home run attack with four. For the Seekers, Pauline Taylor and Jane Hagerman singled twice.

Pitcher Phyllis Reeves closed the door on the Roadrunners, whose only highlight in the last few days has been Linda Donovan's grand slam home run against the Ms Fits. The City Diamonds had to overcome an early two-run

Roadrunner lead but sped to the big win. Jean Hoffman and Joyce Montgomery hit safely five times and Margaret Ayers four for the winners. Jean Hoffman also homered twice. For the Roadrunners, Eunice Curry and Donna Bialas had four hits and Sharon Champagne and Carol Johnson three each.

Odd Squad's Cindy Hood hurled the four-hit victory over City Hall Gals, giving up hits only to Angie Hicks and Sylvia Dubisky, two each.

Debbie Wilcox, Pat Holcomb, Bertha Sterling and Jancal Eberline socked three hits for the Odd Squad.

The Ms Fits caught the Keljoys napping in their 19-11 win. Pat Maciejewski, Sharon Howie and Audrey Szyndlar ripped five hits each, and Anne Szyndlar uncorked a home run.

For the Keljoys, Betty Boshma, Debbie Nieman, Chris McCule, Cindy Nixon and Kathy Glinski stroked three hits.

Huron is still on top

Rain continues to plague the schedule-makers in the Romulus Men's Slow-Pitch League as last Thursday's 'must' games were washed out, leaving Huron Valley Steel with an imposing three-game first place lead in the "A" league, with just seven games to play.

Second place Carpentry by Woodcraft saw its chances of catching Huron Valley all but dissolve as it fell to the leaders, 13-5.

Huron scored eight times in the opening on six hits and three errors, as Richard Spearman, Mike Caszar and Paul Tryon slashed out twin safeties for Huron in the victory. Rich Kokila notched the pitching win and Nor McLendon took the loss.

THE "B" RACE remained close as Morgan Manor stayed 1½ games back of Polka Dot Party Store. Morgan turned back Landing Strip Lounge, 16-6, while Polka Dot accepted a forfeit win from National Car Rental. The two divisional leaders square off next Tuesday.

Traffic Transport has won six of its last nine games in "A" league, but the surge is still not enough to bring hopes of a title. The team lost its first six games of the season before turning around.

In its latest game, Transport bested Beck-Howell, 14-3, on the slugging of Bob Turcheck, Jim Ward, Henry Remsey and Mike Beheler. Al Turco allowed Beck-Howell just seven hits to pick up the win.

THE WAY TO GO — Getting his ticket and some information about Acapulco, Mexico from Doug Grube, Braniff International superintendent is Associated Newspapers' Sports Editor Tom Mooradian (at left). Mooradian was the guest of The Mexican

Sports Meridian...in Acapulco

By TOM MOORADIAN

Acapulco, Mexico has long been a mecca for the "jet set."

It is rapidly becoming a paradise for the golf, tennis, swimming and fishing enthusiasts, thanks to the Mexican National Tourist Council, Braniff International Airlines and the Princess Hotels who have teamed their efforts to make the lavish Pacific resort an "athlete's dream come true."

As the Braniff jet knifed its way to Acapulco Friday via Kansas City and Dallas, I didn't know what awaited me in that Mexican city, which is noted for its night clubs and its Flying Indians of Papantla — a group of daring divers who defy the sea with their breathtaking leaps from age-old precipices.

When I returned early Monday morning to Detroit, there was no doubt that Braniff, along with the Princess Hotels International, have accomplished a goal — to bring the vast, natural beauty and resources of Acapulco within reach of American athletes, and a five-hour reach from area sportsmen.

THE LOVELY Pierre Marques & Club de Golf, acquired by Princess Hotels International from Oil billionaire J. Paul Getty, is a 200-room hotel set amid the lush mountains and broad sweep of Revolcadero Beach.

It was our home for three unforgettable days. The Pierre Marques is adjacent to the $40 million Acapulco Princess that opened in 1972. The Princess is definitely one of the most — if not the most — beautiful hotels in the world.

Built in the picturesque style of an Aztec pyramid, the Princess has 777 guest rooms, two championship golf courses, access to 13 tennis courts, scores of outdoor pools and embraces the Pacific Ocean.

"There are millions of tennis players in the United States alone and many have called our facilities among the best they have played," said Bill Sweeney, Princess tennis professional.

Sweeney, who played as a leading amateur throughout the United States, winning more than 30 Eastern tournaments, was once scouted by the Boston Bruins hockey team and also served as the squash professional for the Bronxfield Field Club.

He has coached and given pointers to tennis buffs ranging from corporate presidents and their wives to members of the former New York Giants.

THE ACAPULCO Princess Hotel definitely has the finest tennis facilities in Mexico. There are eight special high traction turf tennis courts, two of which are housed in a special building and fully air-conditioned.

Three tennis courts are fully-illuminated for night play and every court has mercury-vapor lighting to prevent glare.

ACAPULCO is also "the spot" for golfers. There are two courses — The Princess and the Pierre Marques — within a couple of steps of the hotels.

Such VIPs as Johnny Carson, Bob Hope, Sammy Davis Jr., J.P. McCarthy and the late Lyndon Baines Johnson, president of the United States, have tested their skills — and patience — with the palm-studded courses.

Mike Smith, the golf pro at the 6,400 yard, par 72 Princess course, says that the course really provides a fair test for all golfers.

The course capitalizes on the natural character of Acapulco's palm-forested landscape and outstanding natural beauty. With the southern half of the course facing the Pacific Ocean, it is situated in the middle of an old cocoa palm plantation.

Yawning sand bunkers with a series of picturesque lakes and lagoons, serve as further hazards. The playing time is about 3½ to 4 hours.

Then, about a Jack Nicklaus tee shot away, is the par 72 Pierre Marques course which stretches out to 6,700 yards, long enough for the best hitters.

BOTH GOLF courses maintain excellent pro shops offering everything in latest equipment, including electric golf carts.

Special low rate golf holiday packages at the Acapulco Princess, with free use of the facilities at the Pierre Marques, are offered throughout the summer and up until December 15. Golf clinics, lessons, free greens fees and club rentals are available as part of the package.

Rates for a four day, three night package begin at $72 per person, double occupancy.

AND FOR THE non-golfer and tennis player (if there is such a homo sapiens) there is deep sea fishing — a challenge many Americans just can't resist.

You can rent a boat for between $80 and $100 per day (four chairs) — and the fishing is always good.

There's a saying that in Acapulco "costs are never worn. They say that the only time you will see a man with a coat on is when he's married and when he is buried."

We added a third time: when he's the sports meridian recovering from a bout with pleurisy.

TOWNSHIP OF SUMPTER ORDINANCE 28 UNSAFE BUILDING ORDINANCE

An Ordinance defining Unsafe Buildings or structures; to provide for their removal or repair.

By the authority vested in the Township Board by Act 246, P.A., 1945, as amended,

THE TOWNSHIP OF SUMPTER ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. RIGHT OF CONDEMNATION.

All buildings or structures that are or hereafter shall become unsafe, unsanitary, or deficient in adequate exit facilities, or which constitute a fire hazard, or are otherwise dangerous to human life or the public welfare shall be deemed unsafe buildings or structures. All unsafe buildings shall be taken down and removed or made safe and secure, as the building official may deem necessary and as provided in this ordinance. A vacant building, unguarded or open door or window, shall be deemed a fire hazard and unsafe within the meaning of this ordinance.

SECTION 2. EXAMINATION AND RECORD OF DAMAGED BUILDING.

The Township building inspector shall examine every building or structure reported as dangerous, unsafe structurally or constituting a fire hazard; and he shall cause the report to be filed in a docket of unsafe structures and premises, stating the use of the building, the nature and estimated extent of damage, if any, caused by collapse or failure and such other particulars as may be appropriate.

SECTION 3. NOTICE OF UNSAFE BUILDING.

If an unsafe condition is found in a building or structure, the building inspector shall serve on the owner, agent or person in control of the building or structure a written notice describing the building or structure that is deemed unsafe and specifying the required repairs or improvements to be made to render the building or structure safe and secure, or requiring the unsafe building or structure or portion thereof, to be demolished within a stipulated time. Such notice shall require the person thus notified to immediately declare to the building inspector his acceptance or rejection of the terms of the order.

SECTION 4. RESTORATION OF UNSAFE BUILDING.

A building or structure deemed unsafe by the building inspector may be restored to a safe condition provided no change of use or occupancy is contemplated or compelled by reason of such reconstruction or restoration; except that if the damage or cost of reconstruction or restoration is in excess of fifty (50) per cent of its replacement value, exclusive of foundations, such building shall be made to comply in all respects with the requirements for materials and methods of construction of building of the Township Building Code.

SECTION 5. ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE.

If, such owner, agent or person in control of an unsafe building shall refuse or neglect to comply with the said notice from the building inspector, such person shall be ordered to show cause before the Township Board at a time and place to be specified in said order why the Township Board should not order the unsafe building to be torn down or otherwise made safe. A copy of the order shall be served upon the respondent not less than ten days before the date of hearing.

SECTION 6. POSTING NOTICE.

If the person addressed with a notice of unsafe building or an Order to Show Cause cannot be found within the Township after diligent search, then such notice or order shall be sent by registered mail to the last known address of such person; and a copy of the notice or order shall be posted in a conspicuous place on the premises; and such procedure shall be deemed the equivalent of personal notice.

SECTION 7. DISREGARD OF NOTICE.

Should the owner, his agent, lessee or other interested party, after the hearing, fail to remedy the unsafe conditions, the building inspector or his assistants, with the sanction of the Township Board, shall proceed to have torn down or otherwise made safe the unsafe condition and shall report the facts and the cost of doing this work to the Supervisor who shall order the cost paid to the one performing the work, and shall assess the sum against the property in question.

SECTION 8. SEPARABILITY.

The provisions of this Ordinance are separable and should any section, paragraph, sentence or word be held to be invalid by any court of competent jurisdiction the remaining terms of the Ordinance shall not be affected thereby.

SECTION 9. PENALTIES.

Any such owner, agent or person in charge who fails to comply with the notice of the building inspector after hearing before the Township Board, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars or by imprisonment in the County Jail for not exceeding Ninety (90) days or both.

Though golfing has caught on in Mexico like a California brush fire, the country still had its problems in that sport. Lack of facilities and equipment are among those handicaps.

Do you realize there are more than eight million people living in Mexico City alone and there are only five golf courses?" Smith rhetorically asked.

Then, golfing obviously is for the "elite" in Mexico?

"That's true, but hopefully the problem will be resolved in the near future. Just look at the Princess and what they have done with it. And there are other golf courses being built."

The Princess is a golfing gem.

The course is the classic creation of architect Ted Robinson who has combined the distinguishing natural features, such as the unique Acapulco terrain, natural foliage and a spectacular setting. And he has incorporated these features into 18 individualistic, interesting and challenging holes.

There is no question that nature has provided a spectacular setting for the Acapulco Princess Golf Course, with the rolling sand dunes, vistas and large, magnificent specimen palm trees.

Robinson has designed an 18-hole course, in my opinion, that compliments these natural features and has strategically located lakes and added 1,000 additional palm trees - coconuts and all - to make the course one of the most challenging in the world.

By the way, there is an added hazard a golfer must be aware of, falling coconuts.

Smith was in the Detroit area recently with his special show - Golf Swing Time, a show in which he and other golfers do almost everything and anything with a golf ball and club.

Smith also feels more golfers are discovering Acapulco because "it's really different."

In fact, when I said The Daily Eagle was about to stage our annual City Championships Tournament in Wayne, he quipped, "Well, why not get the Braniff Airlines, and the Princess Hotel people to bring you all down here to play?"

Hey, boss, why not?

Blue Boar captures crown

The only fight in the Belleville Softball League is the one for second place, since Blue Boar Inn easily muscled its way to the championship with a 19-1 record.

Belleville Teachers and PLAV, however, have to battle to determine the second place winner and pairings for the league playoffs. Teachers are 15-3 and PLAV, 15-4.

Blue Boar ended its regular season with a 9-0 triumph over Auto Air Cargo; Teachers tripped Belleville Jaycees, 5-2; PLAV finally took Belleville Moose in eight innings, 5-4; Auto Air Cargo blanked Ypsilanti State Police, 9-0; Belleville Mobile Homes handed the State Police the same score, 9-0; and Blue Boar won its second of the week, 18-4, over Mobile Homes.

Portly Lolich

They absolutely need two good pitchers."

Coleman is a 16-8 while Lolich evened his record at 10-10 last night with a 4-3 victory over Baltimore. McLain himself hasn't been burning up baseball with his pitching of late, and posts a 1-1 record since moving to Shreveport July 9, a AA affiliate of the Milwaukee Brewers. He claims his pitching shoulder, bothering him somewhat in the past few months, is starting to "come around" and that he has been "feeling real good" on the mound.

"I feel much better than I did, and I'm pitching better," said the 29-year-old righthander who won 31 games for Detroit in 1968. "I struck out 10 batters in my last start Saturday."

"I'm pitching every fourth day now and if my shoulder should come around like I think it will I should do better. I'll probably know a lot more about it in 10-12 days."

McLain requested to be optioned to the Captains from the AAA-level Iowa Oaks, a Chicago White Sox affiliate, reportedly because he wasn't getting enough starts. He was 1-4 at Iowa. McLain, however, contends it was the weather that made him move.

"There was no consistency in the weather in Iowa," he complained. "One day the temperature would be 60 and the next 100. Try pitching in a climate like that."

The once-feared fastballer, who signed with the Oaks in April as a free agent after being cut by the Atlanta Braves, admitted he is interested in landing a major league pitching coach job if his arm doesn't remain loyal to him, but said he "isn't concerned with that" at the moment.

"Sure, that could happen sometime," McLain said. "I might do that (coach) when my pitching career ends, but I'm not concerned about a coaching job now. I just want to concentrate on working my arm back into shape."

He did say, however, that he has talked to "several" clubs about pitching coach positions, but wouldn't disclose if he had received any firm offers.

700 in Jr. olympics

ANN ARBOR — An unprecedented assault on records is the forecast of officials gearing for an athletic spectacular that will have more than 700 youngsters competing in the AAU National Junior Olympic Championships Aug. 14-16 at the University of Michigan.

Special targets figure to be several track records, including the 9.4 100-yard dash, the 24-foot long jump, the 7-foot high jump and the 4:09 mile. Michigan's new, all-weather tartan track could assist the youngsters in their efforts.

One Junior Olympic official has been particularly impressed with the nation-wide qualification meets. "We've been across the country witnessing the performances of these youngsters and they are far and away the most talented, dedicated group I've ever seen," said Mason Bell, director of youth activities for Chevrolet Motor Division, the national sponsor of the 1973 Junior Olympics.

Swimming records also will be threatened in Ann Arbor's 50-meter Fuller Pool. Thirteen records were broken last year and many of those swimmers are representing the U.S. in world competition right now. Outstanding entries again are expected from Southern California, Northern Illinois, Ohio and Michigan.

Diving, judo, gymnastics and trampoline round out the six-event program. Opening ceremonies August 14 will be followed by two days of competition, Aug. 15-16 for boys and girls, 11 through 18 years of age.

Northville hosts motorcycle races

Canadian Dave Sehl, who has ranked among the American Motorcycle Association's top 10 professional riders in both 1971 and 1973 will lock horns at Northville Downs Saturday, Aug. 11 with a Michigan pro who is currently No. 3 in the national standings.

The 26-year-old Sehl, who races out of the Hamilton, Ont., suburb of Waterdown, will have to beat off the challenge of Michigan's "Milford meteor", Rex Beauchamp, if he is to repeat his June 2 Northville victory in the 15-lap AMA championship expert bracket.

Beauchamp, 22, was 11th in AMA's national point standings last year to Sehl's 10th place finish after Sehl had ranked fifth in 1971. However, the '73 season has seen the Milford rider bid seriously for the national championship and he zoomed into third place with a spectacular performance in the $20,000 Pike's Peak Turf Club race early in July.

Sehl won't be eligible for the Michigan-Ontario team match races at Northville, featuring the top six riders from each state for a guaranteed and separate winner-take-all purse of $2,400.

His best lap of :27.30 seconds missed the half-mile

Northville record of :27.23 by only a tick, and mid-summer hardness of the ideal 87-foot-wide slag Northville Downs oval improves prospects of a record trip.

Time trials for the more than 150 riders August 11 will start at 5:45 p.m. with the first of 15 events for $3,500 scheduled for 7 p.m. Tickets are $3.50 in advance at cycle shops and Hudson's.

Measure would halt sale of blood

Legislation designed to curb the incidence of hepatitis resulting from blood transfusions was introduced recently in the state senate by Sen. William Faust, D-Westland. "Thousands of people die each year from hepatitis after receiving transfusions of virus-tainted blood," Faust said.

Recent surveys also show that hepatitis in the blood of paid donors occurs in about 30 cases per 1,000 as compared to 3 cases per 1,000 among volunteers, according to Faust.

"In view of such statistics, I believe that my legislation to regulate the purchase of blood from a donor will provide needy Michigan users meaningful protection," he added.

Faust said that "commercial" blood is often obtained from alcoholics who sell their blood so that they can buy liquor.

"These men often live in the most unsanitary conditions and are quite likely to transmit infections," Faust said. "This problem might not be so severe if we had an adequate test to determine good and bad blood," Faust said. "but even the most accepted test will at best miss 75 per cent of the cases where blood is in fact contaminated."

While most people are highly particular in selecting their doctor, Faust said that few people are aware of the risks involved in the blood transfusions.

"When a person is sick, he expects to get better through treatment. Few patients suspect that they may be exposed to the dangers of another disease," Faust said.

The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Georgia estimated that hepatitis resulting from transfusions account for some 3,500 deaths a year, although many doctors believe the total is closer to 35,000.

"Regardless of which figure is correct, the conclusion is obvious," said Faust. "Action must be taken immediately to reduce this health menace."

GM installs sewage plant

An expenditure of $3.9 million over the next two years for the installation of a cooling and storm surface water interceptor system will be spent by the Hydramatic Division of General Motors Corporation, Ypsilanti.

Engineering work has begun on the project and the system is scheduled for completion in approximately two years.

The purpose of the system, according to U.S. Garlick, general manager, is to assure that the normally uncontaminated cooling or storm water which enters area streams does not become accidentally contaminated due to equipment malfunctions or the possibility of an accidental oil spill.

Currently, water used in the Hydra-matic industrial process and subject to contamination, is treated at the division's water facility and discharged to the Wayne County Interceptor System.

Hydra-matic's sanitary sewage is treated at the Ypsilanti Township Treatment Plant. Water used by this division for cooling purposes during the manufacturing process is uncontaminated and together with storm water from Hydra-matic's roofs, roadways and parking lots, is discharged eventually into the streams.

The new system will consist of two, two-million gallon holding tanks. One tank will contain the division's cooling water and the second tank will have the capability of containing rain water from the initial 20 minutes of a one inch per hour storm over a 216 acre area.

If an accident occurs, a computer controlled monitoring sensor system will automatically detect any pollutants and the water will be diverted to a third holding tank for treatment prior to discharge.

Garlick said: "this cooling and storm water interceptor system is subject to approval by the State Water Resources Commission and will provide a final factor of safety over and above present water pollution controls at Hydra-matic."

The Romulus Wesleyan Church teen group is asking parishioners to save copies of the Romulus Roman for a paper drive.

The teen group is sponsoring the paper drive to assist a Korean orphan. The group will help missionaries to raise the child and provide clothing for him.

Medical doctors needed

A nationwide effort is being launched during August by the Michigan Health Council to attract 2,000 medical doctors to locate in 184 Michigan communities seeking general practitioners and medical specialists.

Rosters giving detailed information about the communities are being sent to hospitals, physicians throughout the United States and Canada as well as physicians in military service in foreign countries. Twenty-one of the communities are located in the Upper Peninsula, 23 in north central counties, 34 in east central, 32 in west central, 23 in southeastern and 51 in southwestern Michigan.

In addition the council publicizes administrative and industrial medicine openings for physicians with many of the major automobile and industrial concerns and county health departments in Michigan as well as Civil Service positions with the Michigan Department of Public Health and Michigan Department of Mental Health.

"Some of the small communities need only one general practitioner while other communities such as Flint, Saginaw, Lansing, Bay City, Mt. Clemens and Monroe could use from 25 to 50 or more doctors," said John A. Doherty, executive vice-president of the Michigan Health Council.

Creates richer lifestyle

Trim deck renews yard in old neighborhoods

Over the years a yard may become nicely landscaped and neatly kept, but often it becomes apparent there's something lacking for full outdoor living enjoyment.

What's needed in your own urban renewal program. It needn't be overwhelming or major. A wood deck with benches, railing and room for barbecuing and outdoor dining will accomplish wonders.

An older home in an established neighborhood gained a new look and the family a richer lifestyle with such a deck, planned for them by a landscape architect.

The narrow part of the deck begins at the back door, and was built at floor level to avoid steps in this busy traffic area. Leading from the narrow section are two steps down to a walkway along the back of the house and to the detached garage and driveway at the other side of the house.

The main portion of the deck extends the length of the house and about 15 feet toward the back of the lot. It's built of 2 by 2-inch fir set on posts and joists of 4 by 4 inch fir.

On one end, a bench doubles as a railing. The seat of the bench is built of the same 2 by 2 material as the deck, with a facing of 2 by 4 inch fir and legs of 4 by 4 inch posts.

Rail Allows View

The railing around the remainder of the deck is simple and retains an open feeling for full view of the yard and plantings. Posts are paired and slightly spaced 2 by 4s, the cap is a flat 2 by 6, top and middle rails are 2 by 2s, and the bottom rail 2 by 4s.

A second flight of wide steps at the corner of the outer edge of the main deck affords access to the lawn and planter beds.

The deck and a boundary fence built of 1 by 8 inch wood in a board-on-board pattern are stained grey to provide a neutral setting, allowing the trees and shrubs to provide color and texture accents.

Play area made

Creating a play area for children by framing part of the yard with wood fences provides security for tots and helps limit the activities of older, more rambunctious youngsters.

Hopefully, the garden and plantings in other parts of the yard will be spared from some of the running and jumping when children have their own area for play.

A 15 by 20 foot corner of the back yard was set off by one family for use by preschool and elementary age children, with room for a slide, chair swing and plenty of running space.

ALONG THE back and side property lines, the fence is built of slightly spaced one by six-inch western pine boards set vertically on three stringers of two by fours and four by four-inch posts six feet apart.

A lower fence encloses two sides of the corner area inside the yard, allowing parents to keep the youngsters in view from inside the house. This fence is of one by two between two by four-inch top and bottom rails, set on four by four-inch posts.

To cushion the falls that always come with busy play, the ground inside the fences is covered with wood chips. This also keeps down weeds and dust and eliminates waiting for mud to dry after rainy days.

Also quick drying is a small deck in one corner of the play area, reached by a wood walkway along the fence. Walk and deck are of two by four-inch fir laid flat and face-nailed to four by four-inch stringers.

THE DECK offers a sturdy platform for a small table and chairs or other toys that need a firm base. When children are grown, the deck converts quickly to other family uses or can become the floor of an added storage shed.

Play structures easily built by the handyman of dimension lumber, such as swings and climbers, complement the natural colors and textures of the wood ground cover and fences.

PLAY AREA—Room to run without tramping the garden is provided by play area enclosed by fences of one by six-inch western wood along property lines. Lower fences inside yard are of one by two on two by four stringers. Decking of two by four-inch fir, wood chips on ground reduce weeds, dust and mud.

It's always a difficult matter to determine which projects around the house you can safely undertake and which should be turned over to a professional.

Some of us know our limits. Some don't — and wind up with a very amateurish result or a quick call for assistance in completing the job.

Lawn Care

Watering is no simple job

Watering a lawn seems like a simple thing. Man needs water to live, and so do lawns. Yet there is more disagreement about watering than about any other aspect of lawn care.

Most of the disagreement stems from the lack of a precise rule that can be universally applied to all lawns. Each homeowner must personally analyze the characteristics of his own yard, say landscaping experts.

The type of grass, the type of weeds present, the type of soil, the grade of the lawn, the amount of sun the lawn gets and the cost and availability of water all affect when and how much water should be applied. Consequently, making a rule more precise than "when it needs it" is difficult.

THE BEST indication of "when it needs it" is that the soil should be moist throughout the root structure, which usually penetrates about three to four inches below the ground surface.

There are dangers to both overwatering and underwatering. If insufficient water is applied, the soil will lose moisture quickly, causing the roots to dry out and the grass to burn.

On the other hand, overwatering impairs oxygen from penetrating the soil, which stunts root growth.

Another simple, yet neglected part of lawn care is trimming. The appearance of an expertly cut lawn can be ruined by tall, uncut grass along a walk or against a house or tree.

MANY PERSONS disregard this essential part of lawn care because it's tiring and time-consuming. But it doesn't have to be, the experts state. An electric grass trimmer can keep your lawn trimmed the fast and easy way.

If your lawn is receiving the proper amounts of fertilizer and warm water, and it still looks brown and dying then it may be suffering from insects or disease.

SPRAYING THE lawn with just any chemical probably will be ineffective. The most prudent approach is to identify exactly what insect or disease is causing the problem.

After this identification has been made, the obtain a product that will effectively eradicate the cause. It's also important that the directions on the package be followed, for too much of the "cure" can be worse than the "cause."

Do-it-yourself ceiling tops off paneling job

After paneling, what's next? A logical encore is to top off new walls with a do-it-yourself ceiling of tile or lay-in panel.

The condition of your present ceiling dictates your options among three basic installation methods.

1. Adhesive demands an even surface. It also must be firm, dry and clean. Unsound plaster, large holes or unfinished ceilings with exposed joists can be covered by these alternatives.

2. Furring strips of one by three-inch softwood. Nail to joist crossings with eight penny nails. Apply tile with three penny box nails or nine-sixteenths-inch coated staples spaced six-inches apart.

3. Suspended, or "drop", ceilings of metal grid hung from wire or straps. There should be a drop of at least three-inches, particularly between exposed pipes or ducts.

REGARDLESS OF the application method, it's a good idea to open the cartons and allow them to stand in the room a minimum of 24 hours. This permits the tiles to become "conditioned" to the normal room temperature and humidity.

Ceiling tile should not be used in areas where the relative humidity continuously exceeds 80 per cent. When used in areas such as laundry and bathrooms where occasional condensation may occur on the surface, a plastic coated finish is recommended.

Plan layout ahead of time for a pleasing finished appearance. Tile can be cut with a razor utility knife to fit around pipes and light fixtures.

Manufacturers and lumber dealers provide detailed instructions for planning.

OR, YOU CAN obtain general information by writing for "Spec No. 6" from the Acoustical and Insulating Materials Association, 205 W. Touhy, Park Ridge, Illinois 60068.

Attractive styles of molding are available to conceal ceiling edges along the walls. It's easier to paint or finish molding to match your paneling before you nail it in place as a final touch.

Hints can add beauty to geranium

Any geranium plant can be more beautiful by following a few hints from Michigan State University horticulturists.

When considering a location for your geraniums, remember that they bloom best where there's a large amount of sunlight.

Geranium plants enjoy a loam soil — not too sandy nor all clay or silt.

WATER THE plants thoroughly after planting. If watering is necessary later on, be careful not to get the foliage wet. Water provides a good medium for plant diseases.

Planters, urns and window boxes make good homes for geraniums. They tend to bloom better when not overpotted. (Do not place them in too large a pot).

A good soil mixture for potted geraniums: one part each of soil, sand and peat moss.

Watering should be done only when the top soil feels dry. To prevent soggy soil and salt build-up, drainage holes are necessary.

FERTILIZER is good for geraniums, but too much can also kill the plant. Use up to two pounds of 12-12-12 or 5-10-5 fertilizer for every 100 square feet, or one-fourth teaspoon per plant.

Propagation is easy with healthy geraniums. Place the five-to-six-inch cuttings in a cool, dry, shaded location so the ends of the stems can "heal over" for several days before placing in moist soil for rooting. This prevents the ends of the stems from rotting.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you follow your intuition, you know exactly what to do regarding some important issues facing you. Use good judgment, too. Return the affection which mate extends to you and have much greater rapport.

This leads to much goodwill, understanding and favors given to your clever youngster. Teach early to become a good student, and then this chart becomes very successful. Much charm here and willingness to cooperate with others. Spiritual training early.

Ford birthday picnic planned

Thousands of Western Wayne County residents are expected to gather Aug. 4, for Congressman William D. Ford's annual birthday picnic at New Liberty Park in Huron Township.

The yearly event, dating back to 1964 when Ford first ran for Congress, is billed as an "old-fashioned, country style picnic," featuring corn on the cob, hot dogs, Polish sausage, popcorn, soft drinks and other refreshments.

Begun as a relatively small celebration for a few hundred friends and supporters, the annual picnic in recent years has attracted up to 6,000 people. With a charge of only $5 a car, many families join with friends and neighbors, and cars with seven and eight occupants are common. Once inside, everything is free.

The annual party, includes music, dancing, games, entertainment and prizes, and an old-fashioned steam engine which is used to provide steam for cooking the corn.

Many veteran picnic attenders bring their own blankets, or folding chairs and tables, since the park's supply of picnic tables is exhausted early in the afternoon, Ford said.

The festivities officially begin at noon, and end at 6 p.m. The park is on Bredow Road, a half mile south of Sibley Road, between Mid-diebelt and Inkster roads.

Ford's district includes Belleville, Carleton, Dearborn Heights, Flat Rock, Garden City, Gibraltar, Inkster, Rockwood, Romulus, Southgate, Taylor, Wayne, Westland, Woodhaven and part of Livonia, and the townships of Ash, Brownstown, Canton, Huron, Sumpter and Van Buren.

Surgery to help

A new surgical technique that restores speech to patients whose larynx has been removed is being developed by a team of physicians at the Houston Veterans Administration hospital and Baylor College of Medicine.

The new system is intended to overcome many of the disadvantages of systems now in use that depend on a column of air in the back of the throat vibrated by either a mechanical vibrator or the esophagus.

The procedure cannot be used on patients who have had extensive radiation therapy. Six of the first nine patients in the program developed speech within two to three weeks after surgery.

Motion by Archer, supported by Hamilton, that a high school girls swimming team be established to compete in the Suburban 8 League. Motion carried.

Report by Business Manager Von Destinon regarding the bids on the installation of dust collectors at North and South Junior High School shop areas. Motion by Hamilton, supported by Bos, that contract for said installation be awarded to the Mark Heating Company, Ann Arbor, Michigan, the low bidder on such installation, with all work to be completed by September 1, 1973. Motion carried.

Report by Business Manager Von Destinon on the results of bidding for the installation of ventilating system for the multipurpose room at Elwell School. Motion by Hamilton, supported by Muse, that the contract for said installation be awarded to Mark Heating Company, Ann Arbor, Michigan, the low bidder for such installation. Motion carried.

Building and Grounds Supervisor Peck reported relative to the replacement of cafeteria table tops in the high school cafeteria. Business Manager Von Destinon reported relative to the attempts to get competitive bids for the replacement of said table tops. After a thorough discussion, President Bole appointed a committee consisting of James Sayre and Lynne Hamilton to work with Mr. Peck in obtaining prices of new equipment and to make recommendations relative to replacement of cafeteria tables and chairs. No further action was taken.

Business Manager Von Destinon reported relative to the bids received for the replacement of boilers at Denton School. He further reported that bids had been invited from five companies relative to furnishing of fuel oil during the 1973-74 school year. None of the five companies invited to bid quoted, and their answer generally was that anticipated product availability is such that there is a serious question as to whether or not they could meet requirements during the proposed contract period. They further indicated that if fuel oil is available it would be priced substantially higher than it had been in the past. He further reported on the bids received for the replacement of the boilers at Denton School. Mr. Peck reported that, because of the age of the boilers, replacement parts were very difficult to obtain and extremely expensive when they could be obtained or if manufacture was required. Motion by Archer, supported by Bos, that the boilers at Denton School be replaced, with the contract to be awarded to Hay Plumbing, Romulus, Michigan, the low bidder on said replacement. Motion carried.

Business Manager Von Destinon reported on the need for a tax anticipation loan and the need to get the approval of the resolution by the Municipal Finance Commission. Motion by Archer, supported by Hamilton, to adopt a resolution for a tax anticipation loan in the amount of $2,000,000.00. Further, that the business manager obtain the approval of the resolution by the Municipal Finance Commission and issue notes of the Van Buren Public Schools to cover the same. Motion carried.

Director of Food Services David Baronian was present with Business Manager Von Destinon to present bid summaries covering the purchases of food for the cafeteria use during the 1973-74 school year. Motion by Sayre, supported by Bos, to award the milk contract to the low bidder, Wilson Dairy. Motion carried. Director Baronian pointed out that the Federal milk subsidy had been discontinued for this year and that, because of that fact and the increased cost, there would be need for an increase in milk prices for the 1973-74 school year. Motion by Muse, supported by Archer, to increase the charge for "extra milk" beyond that normally furnished with a lunch to 10 cents for one-half pint. Motion carried.

Motion by Bos, supported by Sayre, to award the ice cream contract to Wilson Dairy, the low bidder. Motion carried.

Motion by Hamilton, supported by Archer, to award the contract for furnishing of bread and buns to the Way Baking Company, the low bidder. Motion carried.

Motion by Archer, supported by Hamilton, to award the contract for furnishing fried pies to the Cochran Brothers, the low bidder. Motion carried.

Motion by Muse, supported by Sayre, to award the contract for cakes to Cochran Brothers, the low bidder. Motion carried.

Director Peck presented a report concerning the request of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department for the installation of a Satellite Receiver site at the high school auditorium. After a thorough discussion, motion by Muse, supported by Roe, to grant the request. Motion carried.

Business Manager Von Destinon reported to the Board regarding the school district state equalized valuation for 1973-74. No action was required on said report.

Business Manager Von Destinon reported to the Board concerning the furnishing of driver education cars for the summer driver education program. He pointed out that Heineger Chevrolet had furnished two vehicles; Atchison Ford had furnished four vehicles; Rowen Oldsmobile furnished six vehicles for said program. Approximately 850 students enrolled in the program utilizing the twelve furnished vehicles.

Motion by Archer, supported by Roe, to adopt the recommendation of Mrs. Ruth Hayes and Mrs. Marie Malvitz relative to the establishment of a "learning center" at West Willow Elementary School during the 1973-74 school year. Same to be a pilot program. Motion carried.

Questions and comments were received from visitors.

Employee Adam Nixon was present to discuss a Board review of his request for payment for certain days when he was absent from work. Motion by Muse, supported by Sayre, that the request be denied in accordance with the recommendation of the school attorney. Motion carried.

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned.

SPECIAL MEETING June 25, 1973

A Special Meeting of the Van Buren Board of Education was held in the Board Room of the Administration Building on Monday, June 25, 1973 at 7:30 p.m.

Members present: Mrs. Doris Roe, Mr. Charles Bole, Mr. James Sayre, Mr. Elwood Bos, Dr. Richard Muse, Mr. Lynne Hamilton, and Mr. Robert Archer. Superintendent Kaulitz, Business Manager Von Destinon, and Curriculum Director Kohr were also present.

Members of the Student Problems Committee were present to report to the Board and to make recommendations regarding a workable and practical means of dealing with the problem of use of nonprescribed drugs by students. The committee was chaired by Mrs. Nancy Moses, of the high school English department. Many members of the committee responded to questions from the Board and contributed explanations of the lengthy written report previously supplied to the Board. After a lengthy discussion, on motion by Archer, supported by Hamilton, it was decided that the following recommendations of the committee be approved:

A. Establishing a Student Services Center at Belleville High School on a one year pilot program basis, effective September 1973.

B. Approval of participation of a "leadership team" in the Wayne County Intermediate School District DARTE training program in the fall of 1973.

C. Approval of an evaluation of the Van Buren Public Schools Drug Curriculum Guide.

Motion carried.
Athletic Director Harry Hidenfelter reported to the Board regarding the screening of candidates for the high school basketball coaching position. Initial screening procedures and evaluation by Mr. Hidenfelter, his committee, and the administration had reduced the approximately 30 candidates to two candidates who were presented to the Board for personal interviews. After the interviews, motion by Hamilton, supported by Sayre, to hire Mr. Thomas Niemi as the high school basketball coach for the coming year. Motion carried.

Motion by Roe, supported by Muse, to reinstate faculty member Robert Carlson on a transfer basis and that his salary be withheld during the time of suspension. Motion carried.

Superintendent Kaulitz and Curriculum Director Kohr reported on the problem of procurement of land necessary for the "house building project" in the building trades program of vocational education.

On motion duly made, seconded, and unanimously passed, the meeting was adjourned.

IT GETS mighty lonesome around here without our son Jerry. Howard Watkins, 34966 Richard St., Wayne

TO: JUDY WISSMUELLER
O! DEATH WHERE IS THY STING NOW?
O! Grave where is thy Victory?
In death's cold wave I will not flee.
I never thought of death this way.
Until it took you Judy, one summer day.
It's so hard to think of you gone.
But I know you're finally home.
Sometimes we forget that in death
You are really born.
We feel tears instead of joy
For in truth we have found peace.
Through death you now walk the fields of Heaven
Now with Jesus you prepare a place for us.
So walk slowly Judy.
And one day when you turn, you'll find
All of us following close behind.
BROTHER GARY WISSMUELLER

DATSUN SAVES
About a gallon of gasoline a day
With the demand for fuel rising faster than the supply, here's one way to help ease our energy crisis. According to the latest U.S. Bureau of Highways figures, the national average for gas mileage is about 13.5 miles per gallon. The new Datsun 1200 gets around 30 miles per gallon or over twice the national average. The average car in the U.S. is driven just over 10,000 miles a year, so you can save about a gallon of gas every day by driving a 1200. With gasoline prices going up, it's a considerable saving of another important resource: your money. Drive a Datsun, then decide.
